Strengthening Auditing and Accounting Performance in Sub-Saharan Africa: the Education and Training Factors

In many countries in Sub-Saharan Africa (SSA), accounting and auditing performance has been unsatisfactory over the past many years. This is due primarily to a critical shortage of accountants at all levels, the lack of recognized and accepted accounting and auditing standards, and the inadequacy of accounting development. Given that resources are limited in Africa, it is vital that those are put to the best use, and are not lost through poor decision-making and inefficient financial management. Increasingly, accounting is providing the basis for performance evaluation of business entities, and the development of the accounting and auditing profession is important in achieving this. Training professional accountants is a slow process, and there are more vacancies than qualified personnel.

Numerous studies of accounting in SSA have concluded that sustained economic growth cannot be maintained without a sound accounting infrastructure and an appropriately trained accounting profession. The way in which accountants are educated and the sophistication of that education are critical to the ability of the profession to carry out its responsibilities. A 1993 UN global survey of accounting education found a positive correlation between the status of the profession, and the quality of accounting education. Attempts to improve accounting education are only likely to yield significant success when the quality and status of the profession are high. An educational program that prepares students for a low-status profession does not attract the best teachers and students, does not gain government and private sector funding, and does not offer a promise for a fulfilling career.
