Boylan, 2017-05-15 Education is at a crossroads While bureaucrats and teachers fight over the best way to structure and deliver education to students much of the friction generated relates to the different conceptions of what education is about in the first place The crisis in education is therefore of key importance and demands careful attention in order to formulate the best possible response But before policies can be formulated there needs to be a clear agreement on what education should be about To this end this collection of previously published essays facilitates just such discussion The anthology is designed to give a snapshot of the seminal work in the philosophy of education and the input of ethical issues upon that work It provides an authoritative tour of the profession and pivotal issues that confront it written from a variety of international and critical perspectives

First Person Political Grant Reeher, 2006-01-30 In First Person Political Grant Reeher combats the public's alienation from and distrust of politicians by putting a personal face on everyday political life Through moving personal interviews Reeher allows legislators to tell their own stories about how and why they came to politics the experience of serving in their state legislature their decisions to stay or leave and the many trials they face in the name of public service Reeher contends that these politicians do have the public good in mind and often suffer great personal losses for their chance to represent the people and fight for what they think is right His research also shows that those who choose to run for office often come from a background of deep community involvement Reeher argues against public cynicism about our elected officials and his profiles stir not only our praise and respect for these legislators but also a greater belief in the democratic process itself The excerpts from his interviews provide a rarely afforded intimate look at these politicians What emerges from these stories is a humane and believable portrait of public servants acting on behalf of the public good a portrait that should provide some comfort perhaps even inspiration for citizens concerned about the state of American democracy
