Chancellor's Office,2014 California's community colleges continue to play a crucial role in the state's economy by providing students with the skills and knowledge to succeed and by advancing the economic growth and global competitiveness of California and its regional economies through the Economic and Workforce Development Program EWD The EWD program invests in the skills of California's workforce It brings together members of the business community and academia throughout the state to create job opportunities for Californians This report highlights the efforts in helping to build the workforce development programs in the state and discusses California's seven macroeconomic regions through the 10 important economic sectors or industries that have been targeted for investment The data for this report were collected through both quantitative and qualitative methods During 2012-13 EWD continued its commitment to provide training and technical assistance to California's students colleges workers employers and entrepreneurs The strength of the program stems from the continued support of industries and organizations that see the value in economic development Moreover EWD helps to serve regional economic workforce employment needs Statewide Strategic Priority Initiatives are appended Linking Workforce Development to Economic Development William J. Rothwell,Patrick E. Gerity,2000 Provides 28 case studies demonstrating how community colleges identify and address the continuous learning needs of their communities and how they develop individuals help employers and support communities as they fill the workforce training needs of the country Provided by publisher Workforce, Economic, and Community Development League for Innovation in the Community College (U.S.),1997 Making the Connection Joseph Stillman,1994 Perspectives on Hawai'i's Economic and Workforce Development Priorities Pacific Resources for Education and Learning,2003 California Workforce Development ,2000 Economic and Workforce Development Program Annual Report, 2016 California Community Colleges. Chancellor's Office,2016 The California Community Colleges through the Economic and Workforce Development Program EWD continue to propel the California economy forward by providing students with skills to earn well paying jobs At the same time EWD helps provide California companies with the talent they need to compete on a global scale This annual report for 2014-15 highlights both groups efforts in helping to build workforce development programs in the state and discusses California's seven macroeconomic regions through the 10 important sectors or industries targeted for investment The data for this report is collected through both quantitative and qualitative methods Financial data and select performance information are collected through online grant reporting systems Qualitative data such as success stories are collected through the sector navigators The data presented in this report covers the grantee term fiscal year 2014-15 The following are appended 1 Priority Sector Summaries

2 EWD CCCCCO and Regional Consortia Resources and 3 EWD Program Advisory Committee      Workforce Development: Nicholas C. Bolden, Cal Clark, 2020-11-02 For the century of approximately 1870 through 1970 America's ongoing industrialization brought growing prosperity to much of its citizenry and after World War II created a broad middle class society. After the mid 1970s however deindustrialization or the movement of manufacturing production to other countries resulted in growing economic and social stress on many of the working class who did not possess a college education. Donald Trump was the first major U.S. politician to recognize this problem and promise to create good jobs for working class Americans. Yet his most dramatic policy initiatives in the areas of trade, immigration and deregulation did not produce dramatic change during his first term. A more positive trend is bubbling up from state and local governments with the encouragement but not funding from the Trump administration. This is the growing importance of workforce development programs which seek to develop the skills necessary for America's 21st century economy through education reform, industrial apprenticeships and tax incentives. Does the future of the national economy rest in safe arms with the new reindustrialization strategy and education reform? States and local governments must ascertain what mix of higher education reform, K-12 reform, career readiness and high tech training is the best equation for the growing workforce deficit and waning middle class. In addition, education reform must consider high tech, automation, robotics and artificial intelligence as a curriculum component in education reform. This policy area must be constructed in ways that not only broadens the middle class but helps the victims of deindustrialization and reindustrialization. Chapter 1 provides an overview of the challenges facing the working class in the United States and an outline of the book. Chapter 2 describes the stage of industrialization 1870-1970 that created a middle class society. Chapter 3 discusses the periods of deindustrialization 1970-2000 and reindustrialization in advanced manufacturing early 21st century. Chapter 3 then analyzes the causes: globalization, organizational change, public policy, business strategy and automation and consequences: the emergence and shrinkage of a broad middle class society of the changing dynamics of industrialization. Chapter 4 presents a case study from the state of Alabama demonstrating how manufacturing reduces inequality. Chapter 5 discusses how work-based learning programs promote racial diversity. Chapter 6 investigates modern apprenticeship and work-based learning programs. Finally, Chapter 7 considers the implications of this study and argues that workforce development policies hold the key to American prosperity in the 21st century.      Michigan Connections, 1997      2019 Current and Emerging Issues in Economic and Workforce Development, 2019      Jobs and Economic Development in Minority Communities Paul Ong, Anastasia Loukaitou-Sideris, 2006-07-15 Over the past four decades the forces of economic restructuring, globalization and suburbanization coupled with changes in social policies have dimmed hopes for revitalizing minority neighborhoods in the U.S. Community economic development offers a possible way to improve economic and employment opportunities in minority communities. In this authoritative collection of original essays contributors evaluate current programs and their prospects for future success. Using case studies that consider communities of African Americans Latinos Asian immigrants and Native Americans the book is organized around four broad topics The Context explores the larger demographic economic social and physical forces at work in the marginalization of minority communities Labor Market Development discusses the factors that shape supply and demand and examines policies and strategies for workforce development Business Development focuses on opportunities and obstacles for minority owned businesses Complementary Strategies probes the connections between varied economic development strategies including the necessity of affordable housing and social services Taken together these essays offer a comprehensive primer for students as well as an informative overview for professionals
