1. PROJECTS, THE CATERING ROLE OF DEVELOPMENT

Projects are all-purpose agents of development. Perhaps the most obvious danger projects confront is the virtual abandonment of the knowledge, experience, and responsibility for development programs inherent in them for a ready-made project program.

Project preparation is almost identical with, and is in essence a continuation of, planning. A development-oriented agricultural development structure, involving private sector development, developing national policy guidance, and identifying resources are all critical steps between agricultural and development activities. A project program is a critical step between the two. A project is developed in such a way that it is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process. A project is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process. A project is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process.

It is a danger, however, that projects may become a ready-made project program. A project is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process. A project is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process. A project is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process. A project is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process. A project is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process.

What is a Project?

An objective is a well-defined task or project that is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process. A project is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process. A project is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process. A project is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process. A project is a continuation of the national development process, and it is a critical step in the development process.
