Summary

Although in several EU Member States many public interventions have been running for the prevention and/or management of obesity and other nutrition-related health conditions, few have yet been formally evaluated. The multidisciplinary team of the EATWELL project will gather benchmark data on healthy eating interventions in EU Member States and review existing information on the effectiveness of interventions using a three-stage procedure (i) Assessment of the intervention's impact on consumer attitudes, consumer behaviour and diets; (ii) The impact of the change in diets on obesity and health and (iii) The value attached by society to these changes, measured in life years gained, cost savings and quality-adjusted life years. Where evaluations have been inadequate, EATWELL will gather secondary data and analyse them with a multidisciplinary approach incorporating models from the psychology and economics disciplines. Particular attention will be paid to lessons that can be learned from private sector that are transferable to the healthy eating campaigns in the public sector. Through consumer surveys and workshops with other stakeholders, EATWELL will assess the acceptability of the range of potential interventions. Armed with scientific quantitative evaluations of policy interventions and their acceptability to stakeholders, EATWELL expects to recommend more appropriate interventions for Member States and the EU, providing a one-stop guide to methods and measures in interventions evaluation, and outline data collection priorities for the future.

Keywords: Benchmarking, EATWELL, obesity, policy.

Introduction

Obesity is the most visible manifestation of poor diets, but diet quality matters too – Western societies consume too little fruit and vegetables and omega-3 fatty acids, too much saturated fatty acids, salt and sugar, although significant progress has been made in removing trans-fats from a range of food products (1,2).

The unification of Europe had, as a consequence, the narrowing of differences in the dietary patterns of the different countries and culinary cultures (1). Since the early 1960s, calorie intake in the EU increased on average by 17%; the most rapid increases happened in the Mediterranean countries that caught up with, and in some cases overtook, Central and Northern European levels. There was also a pattern of dietary convergence among European countries. Sugar intake in the EU is near the WHO recommended proportion of total calories, but total fatty acid intake at 38% calorie share is well above the recommended maximum of 30%, and saturated fatty acid intake is 12%

Fletcher,Christine Rake,1998 Effectiveness of Interventions to Promote Healthy Eating in Elderly People Living in the Community Health Education Authority,1998 Health Promotion Interventions to Promote Healthy Eating in the General Population Liane Roe,1997 This report reviews the effectiveness of interventions to promote healthy eating where healthy eating was defined as a diet reduced in fat and increased in starchy foods fruits and vegetables The scope of the review was limited to healthy eating interventions among groups of adults adolescents or school aged children where the populations were not selected for being at raised risk of disease In most settings only controlled experimental and quasi experimental studies were included In the settings of supermarkets and catering outlets uncontrolled studies which had an outcome measure of food purchases were also included We reviewed a total of 76 healthy eating interventions which were evaluated from 1985 to 1996 Author p 1 Understanding and Using Research in Social Work Brian J. Taylor,Campbell Killick,Anne McGlade,2015-10-19 How do social work students learn to use research to underpin their practice decisions How do they learn that research is not an activity unconnected to their professional role and responsibilities but rather acts as a foundation for their knowledge By using the examples drawn from evidence based practice e g what is known to work and what we know about social work processes the authors deliver a text that will help support students to appraise and then integrate research into both their daily practice decisions and their assignments and assessments It will do this by defining key concepts like knowledge and evidence and then look at how these concepts include component parts from law and legislation to practice knowledge and reflective and critical practice Case examples are used to illustrate how a clear understanding of these component parts can build to a substantial evidence base from which to draw upon Identifying relevant research and appraising its quality are core aspects of the book Later chapters show students how robust knowledge of evidence based practice can develop into a clear and confident approach to their workloads and their daily practice dilemmas Nutrition Through the Life Cycle Prakash Shetty,2007-10-31 Nutrition is viewed traditionally as the specific dietary requirements of different age groups without exploring diet in the context of a life long contributory factor to well being Nutrition Through the Life Cycle summarises what is known about the relationship between diet and health at different points in the life cycle and the nutritional requirements of individuals of different ages Nutrition policy and health promotion are discussed together with how dietary interventions can provide long term benefits to individuals and populations Also covered are the major dietary challenges that exist in modern society including the rise in incidence of obesity in both children and adolescents anaemia in children and adolescents and diet related cancers This book is published in association with Leatherhead Food International Obesity Gareth Williams,Gema Fruhbeck,2009-07-08 This
