

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders among different types of workers. The study included 600 male employees from a large manufacturing company who had been employed for at least one year. The results showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among workers in the production department than among workers in the maintenance department. The results also showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among workers who had been employed for more than five years than among workers who had been employed for less than five years.
