Egypt in the 20th Century Moustafa Ahmed, 2003 This book deals with the history of Egypt in the 20th Century which is immensely fascinating and stimulating Egypt begins the 20th Century as a province of the Ottoman Empire with her finance under the dual control of Britain and France and her administration under the control of Britain This complicated political and financial system eliminates the power of Egyptians to govern themselves However there are two main events that contribute to changes in the history of Egypt the 1919 Revolution makes Egypt a semi independent State and the 1952 Revolution awards her full sovereignty abolishes the monarchy and declares Egypt a Republic During World War I and World War II Egypt becomes the principal Ally to Britain in the Middle East whereas during the Cold War Egypt faces intense political and economical pressure from both the Eastern and Western blocs Egypt also has to fight four wars against Israel however she surprises the whole world when President Sadat of Egypt visits Jerusalem in 1977 and signs a peace treaty with Israel in 1979

Synchronized Chronology Roger Henry, 2003 Imagine how distorted our understanding of ancient history would be if the chronological framework around which it was built had several extra centuries added What if the backbone of Egyptian dynasties contained duplicates

The Synchronized Chronology resolves the structural problems of Egyptian chronology and then outlines the correct history of the Middle East and Mediterranean time of Abraham and his wandering into the Empire of Alexander the Great Recognizing some overlapping of dates and names in Manetho s List of Kings frees history to place pharaohs and dynasties where archaeology supports their existence This resolves a myriad of discrepancies and unlikely assumptions that historians have been forced to swallow and neatly opens the way to synchronizing Egyptian dynasties with Biblical chronology in short the period with which history proper has at present to content itself is a mere moment in comparison with the vast reaches of time which in recognition of our ignorance we term prehistoric But this recognition of limitations of our knowledge is a quite recent growth no older indeed than a half century Prior to 1859 the people of Christendom rested secure in the supposition that the chronology of man s history was fully known from the very year of his creation One has but to turn to the first chapter of Genesis to find in the margin the date 4004 B C recorded with all confidence as the year of man s first appearance on the globe One finds there too a brief but comprehensive account of the manner of his appearance as well as of the creation of the earth itself his abiding place Until about half a century ago as has just been said the peoples of our portion of the globe rested secure in the supposition that this record and this date were a part of our definite knowledge of man s history Therefore one finds the writers of general histories of the earlier days of the nineteenth century beginning their accounts with the creation of man B C 4004 and coming on down to date with a full and seemingly secure chronology Our knowledge of the world and of man s history has come on by leaps and bounds since then with the curious result that to day no one thinks of making any reference to the exact date of the beginnings of human history unless indeed it be to remark that it probably reaches back some hundreds of thousands of years The historian can speak of dates anterior to 4004 B C to be sure The Egyptologist is disposed to date the building of the Pyramids a full thousand years earlier than that And the Assyriologist is learning to speak of the state of civilisation in Chaldea some 6000 or 7000 years B C with a certain measure of confidence But he no longer thinks of these dates as standing anywhere near the beginning of history He knows that man in that age in the centres of progress had attained a high stage of civilisation and he feels sure that there were some thousands of centuries of earlier time during which man was slowly climbing through savagery and barbarism of which we have only the most fragmentary record He does not pretend to know anything except by inference of the dawns of civilisation Whichever way he turns in the centres of progress such as China Egypt Chaldea India he finds the earliest accessible records covering at best a period of only eight or ten thousand years giving evidence of a civilisation already far advanced Of the exact origin of any one of the civilisations with which he deals he knows absolutely nothing The Creation of Man with its fixed chronology is a chapter that has vanished from our modern histories To be continue in this ebook

Present Time ... John Jacob Anderson,1870 Radiocarbon and the Chronologies of Ancient Egypt C. Bronk

Ramsey,Andrew J. Shortland,2013-05-31 This volume presents the findings of a major international project on the application of radiocarbon dating to the Egyptian historical chronology Researchers from the Universities of Oxford and Cranfield in the UK along with a team from France Austria and Israel radiocarbon dated more than 200 Egyptian objects made from plant material from museum collections from all over the world The results comprise an accurate scientifically based chronology of the kings of ancient Egypt obtained by the radiocarbon analysis of short lived plant remains The research sheds light on one of the most important periods of Egyptian history documenting the various rulers of Egypt s Old Middle and New Kingdoms Despite Egypt s historical significance in the past the dating of events has been a contentious undertaking with Egyptologists relying on various chronologies made up from archaeological and historical records The radiocarbon dates nail down a chronology that is broadly in line with previous estimates However they do rule out some chronologies that have been put forward particularly in the Old Kingdom which is shown to be older than some scholars thought The research has implications for the whole region because the Egyptian chronology anchors the timing of historical events in neighbouring areas tied to the reign of particular Egyptian kings The results will allow for more historical comparisons to be made in countries like Libya and Sudan which have conducted radiocarbon dating techniques on places of archaeological interest in the past History of Egypt, Chaldea, Syria, Babylonia, and Assyria Gaston Maspero,1904 Empirico-Statistical Analysis of Narrative Material and its Applications to Historical Dating A.T. Fomenko,2013-11-11 Today the methods of applied statistics have penetrated very different fields of knowledge including the investigation ofttexts ofvarious origins These texts may be considered as signal sequences of different kinds long genetic codes graphic representations which may be coded and represented by a text as well as actual narrative texts for example historical chronicles originals documents etc One of the most important problems arising here is to recognize dependent text i e texts which have a measure of resemblance arising from some kind of common origin For instance in pattern recognition problems it is essential to identify from a large set of patterns a pattern that is closest to a given one in studying long signal sequences it is important to recognize homogeneous subsequences and the places of their junction This includes in particular the well known change point problem which is given considerable attention in mathematical statistics and the theory of stochastic processes As applied to the study of narrative texts the problem of recognizing dependent and independent texts e g chronicles leads to the problem of finding texts having a common source i e the same original such texts are naturally called dependent or on the contrary having different sources such texts are naturally called independent Clearly such problems are exceedingly complicated and therefore the appearance of new empirico statistical recognition methods which along with the classical approaches may prove useful in concrete studies e g source determination is welcome

Most of the prefatory issues are extensively elaborated upon in the Prolegomenon which also contains the complete references to the texts and authors discussed below Nevertheless the Preface would be grossly incomplete without touching on some of these issues books and scholars Too many of this book's chapters e g Moras Marxs DB Weiners examine and reference important earlier as well as contemporary general histories of psychiatry and specialized monographs in German French Italian and Spanish Also in his 1968 Short History of Psychiatry discussed below Ackerknecht pp xi xii references important nineteenth and earlier twentieth century psychiatric histories in English French and German Such citations will of course not be repeated here Finally thanks to several publishers re editions of dozens of classical psychiatric texts one can consult their bibliographies as well See Prolegomenon for references to these splendid series In a rough and ready sense medical history began in classical Greece for example On Ancient Medicine While traditionally included in the Hippocratic corpus this text seems more likely to have been written by a non or even anti Hippocratic doctor Moreover the Hippocratic and other schools were hardly as secular as we now suppose On Epilepsy for example does not so much declare the prevalent denotation of it as the sacred disease erroneous as it does that it is no more nor less sacred than any other disease
