Effective Environmental Regulation Learning From Polands Experience:

Effective Environmental Regulation David P. Angel, Halina Szejnwald Brown, Patrick G. Derr, 2000-07-30 Challenging views prevalent among Western and Polish scholars this book explains Poland's surprising success in developing effective environmental and occupational regulatory systems while achieving remarkable socioeconomic growth despite the toxic legacy of the Communist era. It offers rich insights into the questions of how one can achieve both economic growth and improved environmental and safety protection and of the extent to which regulatory systems can be transferred across national and cultural boundaries. The authors develop a theoretical framework for assessing regulatory success then use it to analyze Poland's recent experience. Grounded in five case studies of recently privatized firms the analysis also presents a new survey of privately owned firms extensive policy and data analysis and interviews with key policy leaders entrepreneurs and intellectuals. The book points to case specific decision making and information richness as key dimensions of an effective regulatory system and considers in depth the extent to which information richness is culturally dependent and hence its portability as a policy tool. Addressing regulatory issues that are specific to both the United States and the international development community the book makes a significant contribution to advancing the theoretical and conceptual frameworks used to explain the success or lack of success of regulatory systems.

Poland Gordon Hughes, Julia Bucknall, 1999 The prospect of joining the European Union defines much of Poland's current policy agenda The political and economic consensus in favor of joining the EU as quickly as possible is very strong and indeed most of the adjustments required are likely to be in Poland's immediate interest However the changes required to comply with EU directives in the environment sector involve sustained high levels of investment and significant uncertainty about the timing and nature of the associated benefits The European Commission's Opinion on Poland's application for EU membership acknowledges the severity of the environmental problems in Poland and comments on the challenges the country will have to face especially in the areas of wastewater treatment and air pollution The Opinion concludes that while full transposition of the environmental acquis in Poland could be expected in the medium term effective compliance with a number of pieces of legislation would require sustained high levels of investment and considerable administrative effort Full compliance in areas such as drinking water and certain aspects of waste management could be achieved only in the long term and will necessitate increased levels of public and private investment This paper aims to address some of the issues involved in planning compliance with EU environmental directives The paper has three principal objectives Highlight major issues that Poland is likely to face in implementing the requirements Estimate the total costs of compliance for the public sector in certain key sectors and outline possible options for reducing those costs and Assess where the burden of those costs is likely to fall and the options for financing the investments
