Murnane, John B. Willett, 2010-09-15 Educational policy makers around the world constantly make decisions about how to use scarce resources to improve the education of children Unfortunately their decisions are rarely informed by evidence on the consequences of these initiatives in other settings Nor are decisions typically accompanied by well formulated plans to evaluate their causal impacts As a result knowledge about what works in different situations has been very slow to accumulate Over the last several decades advances in research methodology administrative record keeping and statistical software have dramatically increased the potential for researchers to conduct compelling evaluations of the causal impacts of educational interventions and the number of well designed studies is growing Written in clear concise prose Methods Matter Improving Causal Inference in Educational and Social Science Research offers essential guidance for those who evaluate educational policies Using numerous examples of high quality studies that have evaluated the causal impacts of important educational interventions the authors go beyond the simple presentation of new analytical methods to discuss the controversies surrounding each study and provide heuristic explanations that are also broadly accessible Murnane and Willett offer strong methodological insights on causal inference while also examining the consequences of a wide variety of educational policies implemented in the U S and abroad Representing a unique contribution to the literature surrounding educational research this landmark text will be invaluable for students and researchers in education and public policy as well as those interested in social science      Progress in Education, Volume 15 Roberta V. Nata, 2007 This series presents substantial results from around the globe in selected areas of educational research The field of education is consistently on the top of priority lists of every country in the world yet few educators are aware of the progress elsewhere Many techniques programs and methods are directly applicable across borders This series attempts to shed light on successes wherever they may occur in the hope that many wheels need not be reinvented again and again      Schools Count Ward Heneveld, Helen Craig, 1996 World Bank Technical Paper No 303 Reviews the design of 26 projects in Sub Saharan Africa that were prepared by African governments and the World Bank for Bank funding The report concludes that school level factors need more attention in program design      Participation and Performance in Primary Schooling Vinayagum Chinapah, 1983      Schooling and Disparities Kjell Nyström, 1985
