Rethinking School Health, 2011 For the goals of Education for All EFA to be achieved children must be healthy enough not only to attend school but also to learn while there Because school health and nutrition programs specifically benefit poor sick and hungry children they can make a key contribution to achieving EFA's goals. However, children can benefit only if the programs reach them. Rethinking School Health: A Key Component of Education for All describes how schools have been used as a platform for delivering familiar, safe, and simple health and nutrition interventions to hard-to-reach children in low-income countries. The book's foreword was written jointly by Elizabeth King of the World Bank, Susan Durston of the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), and Qian Tang of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), indicating the interagency support for this approach. The book will be of particular interest to those working in the fields of education, health, and nutrition and early childhood development. Book Jacket      The Impact of HIV/AIDS on Education Worldwide

Recent literature on effective HIV/AIDS prevention programs underscores the importance of cultural sensitivity and cultural competence in the delivery of services and care. It offers all the tools practitioners need to launch an effective prevention program, from identifying program goals and objectives to developing program models, to recruiting and retaining staff, and finally to conducting evaluations and reporting results. All material is filtered through a cultural perspective, and methods are tailored to specific racial, ethnic, and socioeconomic groups. Additional resources are included to assist in the preparation and development of your prevention program, such as Federal standards and guidelines for culturally competent health care and social service provision, true-life case studies that show how other HIV prevention programs succeeded, checklists, worksheets, and templates to create, monitor, and manage your program. The CD includes customizable checklists and worksheets that you can use in your program. A demonstration of the Virtual Program Evaluation Consultant (VPEC) software program, a program evaluation service offered by Sociometrics Corporation.
