Sager, 2025-01-27 What is history What are historians doing when we create our histories The need for answers is more urgent than ever We live in an era when history is often rejected or ignored and when all teachers of history confront formidable challenges In the culture of screen capitalism and social media historical knowledge is evaded in an expanding present minded consciousness How can history be defended and what is it that we are defending This book argues that history is a mode of thinking a form of imaginative reasoning with its own informal logic In non technical language and using examples from important works of history the book defines core elements in historical thinking These include contingency complexity temporality parts and wholes consilience perspectives analogy and abduction These elements are subsumed into the concept of imaginative reasoning The overall argument echoes the work of hermeneutic philosophers History is a disciplined imagination tempered and empowered by its forms of reasoning It embraces ethical imperatives that the historian has a duty to declare Equipped with such understanding historians may answer the many rejections of history and secure its place in our shared futures

China-Africa Higher Education Engagement Yi Sun, 2025-09-30 This book explores China's expanding role in global higher education analyzing its development models in the Global South through initiatives such as the Forum on China Africa Cooperation FOCAC and China's Belt and Road Initiative BRI Centering on African and BRI country students at China's first and only China Africa International Business School it offers fresh theoretical and empirical insights Drawing on rich data this book examines China's alternative aid approaches and philosophies students' motivations post graduation aspirations and their interpretations of the Chinese Dream Highlighting the economic and political implications of China Africa higher education ties it provides a timely analysis and actionable recommendations for policymakers educators and researchers An essential resource for understanding China Africa higher education and China's development model The Relationality of Race in Education Research Greg Vass, Jacinta Maxwell, Sophie Rudolph, Kalervo N. Gulson, 2017-11-01 This edited collection examines the ways in which the local and global are key to understanding race and racism in the intersectional context of contemporary education Analysing a broad range of examples it highlights how race and racism is a relational phenomenon that interconnects local national and global contexts and ideas The current educational climate is subject to global influences and the effects of conservative hyper nationalist politics and neoliberal economic rationalising in local settings that are creating new formations of race and racism While focused predominantly on Australia and southern world or settler colonial contexts the book aims to constructively contribute to broader emerging research and debates about race and education Through the adoption of a relational framing it draws the Australian context into the global conversation about race and racism in education in ways that challenge and test current understandings of the operation of race and racism in contemporary social and educational spaces Importantly it also pushes debates about race and racism in education and research to the foreground in Australia where such debates are typically dismissed or cursorily engaged The book will guide readers as they navigate issues of race in education research and practice and its chapters will serve as provocations designed to assist in critically understanding this challenging field It reaches beyond education scholarship as concerns to do with race remain intertwined with wider social justice issues such as access to housing health social economic mobility and political representation Using Design Research and History to Tackle a Fundamental Problem with School Algebra Sinan

Kanbir, M. A. (Ken) Clements, Nerida F. Ellerton, 2017-10-28 In this well illustrated book the authors Sinan Kanbir Ken Clements and Nerida Ellerton tackle a persistent and universal problem in school mathematics why do so many middle school and secondary school students find it difficult to learn algebra well What makes the book important are the unique features which comprise the design research approach that the authors adopted in seeking a solution to the problem The first unique feature is that the authors offer an overview of the history of school algebra Despite the fact that algebra has been an important component of secondary school mathematics for more than three centuries there has never been a comprehensive historical analysis of factors influencing the teaching and learning of that component The authors identify through historical analysis six purposes of school algebra a algebra as a body of knowledge essential to higher mathematical and scientific studies b algebra as generalized arithmetic c algebra as a prerequisite for entry to higher studies d algebra as offering a language and set of procedures for modeling real life problems e algebra as an aid to describing structural properties in elementary mathematics and f algebra as a study of variables They also raise the question whether school algebra represents a unidimensional trait Kanbir Clements and Ellerton offer an unusual hybrid theoretical framework for their intervention study by which seventh grade students significantly improved their elementary algebra knowledge and skills Their theoretical frame combined Charles Sanders Peirce's triadic signifier interpretant signified theory which is in the realm of semiotics with Johann Friedrich Herbart's theory of apperception and Ken Clements and Gina Del Campo's theory relating to the need to expand modes of communications in mathematics classrooms so that students engage in receptive and expressive modes Practicing classroom teachers formed part of the research team This book appears in Springer's series on the History of Mathematics Education Not only does it include an important analysis of the history of school algebra but it also adopts a theoretical frame which relies more on theories from the past than on contemporary theories in the field of mathematics education The results of the well designed classroom intervention are sufficiently impressive that the study might have created and illuminated a pathway for future researchers to take

Despite efforts to redress the prejudice and discrimination faced by people with mental illness a pervasive stigma remains Many well meant programs have attempted to counter stigma with affirming attitudes of recovery and self determination Yet the results of these efforts have been mixed In The Stigma Effect psychologist Patrick W Corrigan examines the unintended consequences of mental health campaigns and proposes new policies in their place Corrigan analyzes the agendas of government agencies mental health care providers and social service agencies that work with people with mental illness dissecting how their best intentions can misfire For example a campaign to change the language around mental illness by replacing supposedly stigmatizing words with empowering ones has made little difference in how people with mental health conditions are viewed Educational programs that frame mental illness as a brain disorder have made the general public less likely to blame people for their illnesses but also skeptical that such conditions can be cured Ultimately Corrigan argues that effective strategies require leadership by those with lived experience as their recovery stories replace ideas of incompetence and dangerousness with ones of hope and empowerment As an experienced clinical researcher as an advocate and as a person who has struggled with such prejudices Corrigan challenges readers to carefully examine anti stigma programs and reckon with their true effects
