Egg And Sperm Race:

Egg and Sperm Race Matthew Cobb, 2006 Where do we come from Where do animals come from For thousands of years we really had no clue how living things were created great thinkers like Aristotle and Plato had attempted to explain what became known as the problem of generation but neither really had the tools or the insight to solve the mystery The result was a wealth of weird and wonderful ideas about the components necessary to create new life blood vapours strange pulses in the air Nor did people make intuitive leaps that now seem self evident it was widely accepted that animals could breed different species for example the notion that two sheep can only make another sheep is a surprisingly modern idea But all this confusion changed in a flurry of discovery in the mid seventeenth century In just a decade a group of young scientists in Europe all known to each other and in competition with each other established the existence first of the human egg and then of the human sperm At last the building blocks were in place although in one of the great ironies of science it would be another 150 years before someone worked out how fertilisation actually took place Focusing on the personalities and rivalries of this extraordinary period Matthew Cobb has shed new light not just on an under reported story of science but on our very nature what makes us and how little we still know about one of the greatest miracles of Nature

Literacy and Power Hilary Janks, 2009-10-16 Hilary Janks addresses key questions about literacy and power in this landmark text that is both engaging and accessible Her central argument is that competing orientations to critical literacy education domination power access diversity design foreground one over the other but are crucially interdependent and need to work together to create possibilities for redesign and social action that serve a social justice agenda She examines the theory underpinning each orientation and develops new theory in the argument for interdependence and integration Sitting at the interface between theory and practice constantly moving from one to the other the text is rich with examples of how to use these orientations in real teaching contexts and how to use them to counterbalance one another In the groundbreaking final chapter Janks considers how the rationalist underpinning of critical literacy tends to exclude the non rational shows ways of working beyond reason pleasure and play desire and the unconscious and makes the case that these need to be taken seriously given their power to cut across the work of critical literacy educators working from any orientation

be avoided through elective caesarian or extreme pain suppression In this uplifting book Kristina Turner applies esoteric knowledge to show practical ways of transforming a difficult experience into a positive and deeply spiritual one Kristina looks closely at the physical processes that take place in the body during pregnancy and childbirth as well at explaining the facts behind hospital procedures and options for home birth providing readers with the necessary knowledge to make their own choices She feels that birthing should be viewed as a unified process from the nine months of pregnancy through labour to the many months of breastfeeding all three stages contribute to developing the bond between mother and child and the child's emotional function Kristina writes beautifully about the sacred mystery inherent in conception and pregnancy and guides the new mother towards being a conscious participant in the spiritual process of bringing life into this world This book is both very practical and hugely inspiring
