other brain region the cerebellum utilizes amino acids as its main excitatory and inhibitory neurotransmitters. Excitatory amino acid transmitters in addition to serving neuronal communication may also mediate trophic and toxic effects and as such they may play a role in neurodegenerative processes. The cerebellar degenerations were among the first human disorders with primary system atrophy to be studied clinically and pathologically. This field of clinical cerebellar sciences no longer confined to the previously known descriptive level is now advancing rapidly propelled by rapid advances in neuroimaging, immunology and molecular biology. The advent of CT, MRI and PET has in recent years permitted the study of central nervous system alterations in living patients thus contributing substantially to the accuracy of the diagnosis and the classification of these disorders. The nosology of cerebellar degenerations which has been the subject of much debate for over a century is presently a dynamic field with new entities being recognized and old classic ataxias being redefined in the light of new genetic evidence.
