Between the north west coast of Venezuela and the island of Trinidad there lies an extensive expanse of water known as the Gulf of Paria a name which it has derived from the neighbouring Spanish coast At first sight this gulf presents to the eye the appearance of a vast lake On the north east and south it is bordered by the dark mountains of Trinidad while on the opposite side the cloud capt Andes which terminate in that direction rear their towering heads and present a lofty western boundary The gulf thus narrowly surrounded on all sides communicates with the great Atlantic ocean only by two narrow outlets which are situated at its northern and southern extremities and are respectively named the Dragon s and the Serpent s Mouth It is by these narrow straits as the reader will have already gathered that Trinidad is separated from the mainland of South America Shielded as they are by these elevated boundaries the waters of the gulf are ever calm and placid The hurricanes which periodically ravage the adjacent regions never sweep their quiet surface and ships from the ports of the neighbouring colonies usually avail themselves of the protection afforded by this sheltered haven and safely ride away the tempestuous months on its smooth expanse The scenery around this gulf is extremely picturesque and beautiful Small green islands are dispersed here and there and seem to float gaily on the bosom of the slumbering waters the forest clothed mountains that beetle from above cast their lengthy shadows far and wide and the diving birds that continually ply the wing over the reflecting surface throw into the scene some of the choicest features of romantic beauty It was here that on a lovely morning in the month of March two skiffs might barely be seen floating quietly far far away at sea It was as yet early the gray mist of the tropical morning was just melting away before the rays of the rising sun that was fast ascending from behind the mountains in the east a thin haze nevertheless was still left surrounding every object Scarcely a ripple as yet marked the gulf and in the quiet of the hour might be heard the waking haloos of the mariners on board their ships in the harbour of Port of Spain as they summoned each other to the labours of the day The two skiffs were at a great distance from land In the haze it was difficult on a hasty glance to distinguish them from the sea but on closer observation they might be discovered to be a small fishing boat such as those which are generally seen on the gulf and a curial or Indian canoe There were three men in the fishing boat two who were rowers and one that was sitting at its stern and was apparently the master He was of mixed blood of that degree known as that of mulatto and seemingly of Spanish extraction but his two men were blacks The men were resting on their oars the master was occupied in deep sea fishing and the boat floated passively on the water In the Indian canoe there seemed also but three men one sat at the stern the other two crouched in the centre their paddles were carelessly rested on the sides of the light vessel and the canoe like the fishing boat was permitted to float unsteered on the gulf The two skiffs were not far from each other and as the haze cleared away the master of the fishing boat in the musing calm attendant on quiet fishing observed to his men as he dreamingly looked on the canoe Those fellows are Guaragons I dare say they paddled from the canoe the whole of last night and they are now taking their breakfast to get up to town before the breeze rises Yes sa briskly rejoined one of the boatmen dey wok all night all nakid as dey be dey dey no fraid rain dey no fraid sun but wen dey begin dey wok wok so night and day you see paddle go phshah phshah phshah here the speaker screwed up his little features to the utmost in order to express the energy with which the Indians are supposed to paddle while at the same time he endeavoured to imitate the sound of the paddle itself as it dashes the water Emmanuel Appadocca, Or Blighted Life Michel Maxwell PHILIP,1854 Emmanuel

Ganser,2020-08-11 This Open Access book Crisis and Legitimacy in Atlantic American Narratives of Piracy 1678 1865 examines literary and visual representations of piracy beginning with A O Exquemelin s 1678 Buccaneers of America and ending at the onset of the US American Civil War Examining both canonical and understudied texts from Puritan sermons James Fenimore Cooper s The Red Rover and Herman Melville s Benito Cereno to the popular cross dressing female pirate novelette Fanny Campbell and satirical decorated Union envelopes this book argues that piracy acted as a trope to negotiate ideas of legitimacy in the contexts of U S colonialism nationalism and expansionism The readings demonstrate how pirates were invoked in transatlantic literary production at times when dominant conceptions of legitimacy built upon categorizations of race class and gender had come into crisis As popular and mobile maritime outlaw figures it is suggested pirates asked questions about might and right at critical moments of Atlantic history Fictions of the Black Atlantic in American Foundational Literature Gesa Mackenthun,2004-08-02 This book is a significant contribution to existing research on the themes of race and slavery in the founding literature of the United States It extends the boundaries of existing research by locating race and slavery within a transnational and oceanic framework The author applies critical concepts developed within postcolonial theory to American texts written between the national emergence of the United States and the Civil War in order to uncover metaphors of the colonial and imperial unconscious in America s foundational writing The book analyses the writings of canonized authors such as Charles Brockden Brown James Fenimore Cooper Edgar Allan Poe and Herman Melville alongside those of lesser known writers like Olaudah Equiano Royall Tyler Frederick Douglass Martin Delany and Maxwell Philip and situates them within the colonial and postcolonial context of the slave based economic system of the Black Atlantic While placing the transatlantic slave trade on the map of American Studies and viewing it in conjunction with American imperial ambitions in the Pacific Fictions of the Black Atlantic in American

Foundational Literature also adds a historical dimension to present discussions about the ambivalence of postcoloniality

Caribbean Literature and the Public Sphere Raphael Dalleo, 2011 Bringing together the most exciting recent archival work in anglophone francophone and hispanophone Caribbean studies Raphael Dalleo constructs a new literary history of the region that is both comprehensive and innovative He examines how changes in political economic and social structures have produced different sets of possibilities for writers to imagine their relationship to the institutions of the public sphere In the process he provides a new context for rereading such major writers as Mary Seacole Jos Mart Jacques Roumain Claude McKay Marie Chauvet and George Lamming while also drawing lesser known figures into the story Dalleo s comparative approach will be important to Caribbeanists from all of the region s linguistic traditions and his book contributes even more broadly to debates in Latin American and postcolonial studies about postmodernity and globalization Caribbean highly conscious of transnational and international politics textual circulation and revolutionary imaginaries Chapters explore how Black literature was being produced and circulated how and why it marked its relation to other literary and expressive traditions what geopolitical imaginaries it facilitated through representation and what technologies including print enabled African Americans to pursue such a complex and ongoing aesthetic and political project Nationalism and the Formation of Caribbean Literature L. Rosenberg,2016-04-30 This book tells the story of how intellectuals in the English speaking Caribbean first created a distinctly Caribbean and national literature As traditionally told this story begins in the 1950s with the arrival and triumph of V S Naipaul George Lamming and their peers in the London literary scene However Afro Caribbeans were writing literature already in the 1840s as part of larger movements for political rights economic opportunity and social status Rosenberg offers a history of this first one hundred years of anglophone Caribbean literature and a critique of Caribbean literary studies that explains its neglect A historically contextualized study of both canonical and noncanonical writers this book makes the case that the few well known Caribbean writers from this earlier period Claude McKay Jean Rhys and C L R James participated in a larger Caribbean literary movement that directly contributed to the rise of nationalism in the region This movement reveals the prominence of Indian and other immigrant groups of feminism and of homosexuality in the formation of national literatures Catalogue of the Printed Books in the Library of the Faculty of Advocates ...
