Fear and Anxiety Kim Etingoff, 2014-11-17 What makes you anxious Both fear and anxiety are normal human emotions Small doses of them help people stay safe healthy and happy although bigger doses can get in the way of normal daily activities and happiness Healthy amounts of fear and anxiety are just two of the many many emotions we all have every day The more you know about fear and anxiety the more you ll be able to understand why you feel the way you do You can begin to learn how to deal with your feelings when they start to get out of control Understanding your emotions is a lifelong job Find out how to get started by reading this book Neurobiology of Fear, Anxiety and Other Emotions Aage R Moller Phd,2019-07-31 Fear and anxiety play essential roles in almost every person s life Fear is the belief that something dangerous or unfortunate may happen in the future Fear and anxiety are regarded to be unpleasant perceptions with few exceptions such as the pleasure or joy that people may experience from watching horror movies Fear and anxiety control many people s reactions to many aspects of life However it is well known that perceived fear is poorly related to real risks and that is the case even when a person knows the real risk Fear consistently overrides and manipulates facts Fear may help someone avoid making bad or harmful choices but it may also make people make decisions that are not beneficial The book was written to promote a balanced understanding of fear and anxiety The book shows that many lives could have been spared and many people could have been saved from suffering a reduced quality of life by better management of the emotion of fear and anxiety The first chapter discusses the various definitions of fear and anxiety and how to approach an understanding of fear Fear is one of the six innate emotions anger disgust fear happiness sadness and surprise The second chapter discusses the variations of the theory of James Lange and the role of various forms of an appraisal The role of a person s core values is discussed in connection with a person s quality of life It also discusses the components of a good quality of life and the prerequisite for success in life The third chapter discusses the neurobiology of emotions The historical development of the understanding of the function of the emotional brain is discussed How sensory input and memories and imaginations controls fear and anxiety is discussed The role of the three nuclei of the amygdala in creating the actions caused by emotions including fear and anxiety is discussed The roles of many other brain systems in this complex process are also discussed in this chapter What specifically happens in the brain when a person experiences fear or anxiety is discussed in the fourth chapter of the book Many brain systems may be activated in connection with fear and anxiety The fifth chapter discusses the neurobiology of threats What to be afraid of and what not be afraid of is also discussed in this chapter Fear is a part of the body s alarm system that can warn about the dangers of various kinds that may occur sometime in the future Signs of danger may come from the outside the body or from the inside the body in the form of symptoms of diseases or signs of a need for fluid thirst or nutrition hunger The sixth chapter discusses how to minimize the risk of illnesses and other forms of bodily harm and it discusses what to be afraid of and what not be afraid of It discusses the benefits of preventive measures such as vaccination and the reasons that these benefits are not fully utilized Some of the reasons for misuse of medications such as opioids are also discussed in this chapter Anxiety and Depression Charles G. Costello,1976-01-01 Respiration and Emotion Y. Haruki,I. Homma,A. Umezawa,Y. Masaoka,2011-06-28 Gasps sighs and yawns are recognized by even a casual observer as involuntary expressions of emotion through the medium of respiration In recent years scientific observation has focused on sensation and behavior as researchers investigate the relation of emotion and stress in disorders such as asthma hyperventilation and panic disorder Until now however the interplay of psychological factors and physiological responses has not been approached from the interdisciplinary perspective reported in this book Brought together here is the work of physiologists psychologists and researchers in behavioral medicine together with for the first time specialists and practitioners of traditional Japanese arts and culture Knowledge of the art and control of breathing which are essential features of such disciplines as Zen and Noh opens a new and until now unexplored path for scientists seeking to understand the relation between respiration and emotion
