Higher Neal Bascomb,2004-09-21 The Roaring Twenties in New York was a time of exuberant ambition free flowing optimism an explosion of artistic expression in the age of Prohibition New York was the city that embodied the spirit

Impossible Heights Adnan Morshed, 2015-01-15 The advent of the airplane and skyscraper in the 1920s and 30s America offered the population an entirely new way to look at the world from above. The captivating image of an airplane flying over the rising metropolis led many Americans to believe a new civilization had dawned. In Impossible Heights, Adnan Morshed examines the aesthetics that emerged from this valorization of heights and their impact on the built environment. The lofty vantage point from the sky ushered in a modernist impulse to cleanse crowded twentieth-century cities in anticipation of an ideal world of tomorrow. Inspired by great new heights, American architects became central to this endeavor and were regarded as heroic aviators. Combining close readings of a broad range of archival sources, Morshed offers new interpretations of works such as Hugh Ferriss's Metropolis, drawings by Buckminster Fuller's Dymaxion houses, and Norman Bel Geddes's Futurama exhibit at the 1939 New York World's Fair. Transformed by the populist imagination into master builders, these designers helped produce a new form of visuality, the aesthetics of ascension. By demonstrating how aerial movement and height intersect with popular Superman discourses of the time, Morshed reveals the relationship between architecture, art, science, and interwar pop culture. Featuring a marvelous array of never-before-published illustrations, this richly textured study of utopian imaginings illustrates America's propulsion into a new cultural consciousness.

The Building as Screen Dave Colangelo, 2025-10-01 The Building as Screen: A History, Theory, and Practice of Massive Media describes, historicizes, theorizes, and creatively deploys massive media, a set of techno-social assemblages and practices that include large outdoor projections, programmable architectural facades, and urban screens in order to better understand their critical and creative potential. Massive media is named as such not only because of the size and subsequent visibility of this phenomenon but also for its characteristic networks and interactive, screen- and cinema-like qualities. Examples include the programmable lighting of the Empire State Building and the interactive projections of Montreal's Quartier des spectacles, as well as a number of works created by the author himself. This book argues that massive media enables and necessitates the development of new practices of expanded cinema, public data visualization, and installation art and curation that blend the logics of urban space, monumentality, and the public sphere with the aesthetics and affordances of digital information and the moving image.
