and Trip Lines of Good Governance: Archaeological and Historical Considerations Gary M. Feinman, Richard Edward Blanton, Stephen A. Kowalewski, Lane Fargher Navarro, 2022-10-05

Until recently scholarly consensus across the social sciences and history adhered to the view that the incorporation of citizen voice in governance e.g. democracy was an entirely Western phenomenon that mostly is a product of the emergence of rational thought and the modern world. These views are now empirically questioned and subject to serious reconsideration. Yet even researchers who recognize a broader temporal span for democratic or good governance draw fundamental distinctions between these political forms in the past and present. Building on the collective action theories in particular those focused on fiscal financing the editors of this Research Topic outline fundamental characteristics internal financing equitable taxation checks on power and a functioning bureaucracy at the core of good governance which are neither the sole project of the contemporary West nor tied to any specific ideological construct or form of leadership. Even elections can no longer be conceived as assurance of good governance. At this time of global challenges to democracy understanding the comparative history of good governments their core institutions how they worked their foundations what led to their downfalls and the factors that prompted their sustenance or their collapses are extremely important to document. The historical trends and coactive processes that underpinned those human cooperative arrangements which fostered growth and general well being require comparative focus if we are to draw on the wealth of human history to help craft better governance in the future and forestall the tripwires that lead to its failures. We welcome contributions which focus on Diachronic examinations of changes in the fiscal foundations of governance and their impacts on governance. Comparative analysis of governmental variability and its relationship to collective action and its fiscal financing. Cross temporal studies of shifts in the degree of good governance and relations to inequality sustainability bureaucracy public goods and services and fiscal financing. The importance of social compacts and contracts in representative government and how these are sustained and break down. Alternatives and supplements to elections as means of assessing subaltern voices. The relationship between governance and inequality over time and across space. Differences in modes of political collapse and their relationship to governance fiscal financing and responses of principals. The role of public ritual in good versus autocratic governments. Variance in communication and computation in good versus autocratic governments. The relationship between comparative governance and the uses and spatial distributions of community urban space residential and non residential architecture sprawl versus compact settlement. The relationship between comparative governance and neighborhood organization. Was there one or many episodes of enlightenment. The relationship between governance and coactive processes including considerations of demographic growth patterns of migration well being economic growth. The relationship between slave labor and governance. Spot resources and governance. Non hierarchical and egalitarian forms of governance in non state societies. Indigenous inspirations and influences on the Constitution of the United States. Collective action and establishment of early cities. Our aim for this Research Topic is to compile a series of research essays drawn from a broad cross regional and cross temporal sample of historical settings to explore issues and themes relevant to the history and processes that have been at the heart of good governance The Origins of Human Society Peter Bogucki, 2000-01-04 The Origins of Human Society traces the development of human culture from its origins over 2 million years ago to the emergence of literate civilization In addition to a global coverage of prehistoric life the book pays specific attention to the origins and dispersal of anatomically modern humans the development of symbolic expression the transition from mobile foraging bands to sedentary households early agriculture and its consequences the emergence of social differentiation and hereditary ranking and the prehistoric roots of ancient states and empires The Blackwell History of the World Series The goal of this ambitious series is to provide an accessible source of knowledge about the entire human past for every curious person in every part of the world It will comprise some two dozen volumes of which some provide synoptic views of the history of particular regions while others consider the world as a whole during a particular period of time The volumes are narrative in form giving balanced attention to social and cultural history in the broadest sense as well as to institutional development and political change Each provides a systematic account of a very large subject but they are also both imaginative and interpretative The Series is intended to be accessible to the widest possible readership and the accessibility of its volumes is matched by the style of presentation and production
