

ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
UNITED STATES GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

UNITED STATES GEOLOGICAL SURVEY,
OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR,
November 1, 1880.

HON. CARL SCHURZ,
Secretary of the Interior, Washington, D. C. :

SIR: I have the honor to present herewith the first annual report of the United States Geological Survey, covering the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880.

Congress having prescribed the mode of publishing the results of the survey, it is intended to confine these pages to a simple statement of the bureau organization, progress of field investigation, and results already attained.

The law creating the office of Director of the Geological Survey was enacted and approved March 3, 1879. On March 21, 1879, the President nominated me first Director of the Geological Survey, the Senate confirmed his action on April 3, 1879, and on May 24 I took the prescribed oath of office, and entered on my duties.

Congress expressed its determination to inaugurate the Geological Survey in a provision of law so brief, that I give it entire, in order to comprise in this report the history of the origin and organization of this bureau.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

For the salary of the Director of the Geological Survey, which office is hereby established under the Interior Department, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, six thousand dollars: Provided, That this officer shall have the direction of the Geological Survey, and the classification of the public lands, and examination of the geological structure, mineral resources, and products of the national domain. And that the Director and members of the Geological Survey shall have no personal or private interests in the lands or mineral wealth of the region under survey, and shall execute no surveys or examinations for private parties or corporations; and the Geological and Geographical Survey of the Territories, and the Geographical and Geological Survey of the Rocky Mountain Region, under the Department of the Interior, and the Geographical Surveys west of the one hundredth meridian, under the War Department, are hereby discontinued, to take effect on the thirtieth day of June, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine. And all collections of rocks, minerals, soils, fossils, and objects of natural history, archaeology, and ethnology, made by the Coast and Interior Survey, the Geological Survey, or by any other parties for the Government of the United States, when no longer needed for investigations in progress, shall be deposited in the National Museum.

For the expenses of the Geological Survey, and the classification of the public lands, and examination of the geological structure, mineral resources, and products of the national domain, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, one hundred thousand dollars. Enacted and approved March 3, 1879.

Prior to the above enactment, and at irregular intervals since the early years of this century, the national government had made various attempts
