However, there are significant challenges faced by all engaged in this work. In June 2009, science education researchers and practitioners as well as scientists, psychometricians, and assessment specialists convened to discuss these challenges as part of the Learning Progressions in Science (LeaPS) conference. The LeaPS conference provided a structured forum for considering design decisions entailed in four aspects of work on learning progressions: defining learning progressions, developing assessments to elicit student responses relative to learning progressions, modeling and interpreting student performance with respect to a learning progression, and using learning progressions to influence standards, curricula, and teacher education. This book presents specific examples of learning progression work and syntheses of ideas from these examples and discussions at the LeaPS conference.
