

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

Psychology studies reveal that first impressions are formed within 7 to 17 seconds of meeting someone.

38% of a person's first impression is determined by tone of voice.

Addressing potential customers by their name, increases the likelihood that they will respond by 36%.

55% of a person's opinion of others is determined by physical appearance.

During face to face meetings, 93% of people's judgements of others are based on non-verbal input like body language.

7% of what we think of others is based on what they say.

35 Business studies analyzed by the International Listening Center indicated that listening is a top skill needed for success in business.

Unfortunately, most people only retain about 50% of what they hear.

Always be on time for an initial meeting. People are busy; one of the worst offenses you can commit is not respecting their time.
