First Of Stones:

The First Stones William Britnell, Alasdair Whittle, 2022-12-01 The First Stones brings together the results of recent research on the Neolithic long cairns lying in the shadow of the Black Mountains in south east Wales focusing upon Pen-y-wyrlod and Gwernvale the two best known tombs within the group previously excavated in the 1970s Important results lie in both new site detail and reassessment of the wider context Small scale excavation geophysical survey and geological assessment at Pen-y-wyrlod the largest of the Welsh long cairns gave further information about the distinctive external and internal architecture of the monument In turn this opened the opportunity to reassess the pre monument sequence at Gwernvale with re examination of both Mesolithic and Neolithic occupations including a timber structure and midden lithic and pottery assemblages and cereal remains The frame for wider reassessment is given by fresh chronological modeling both of the monuments themselves suggesting a sequence from Pen-y-wyrlod and Pipton to Ty Isaf and Gwernvale probably spanning the 38th to the 36th or 35th centuries cal BC and of early Neolithic activity in south Wales and the Marches probably beginning in the 39th century cal BC A detailed study of the major assemblages of human remains from the Black Mountains tombs includes evidence for diet trauma and lifestyles of the populations represented Recent isotope analysis of human remains from the tombs is also reviewed implying social mobility and migration within local populations during the early Neolithic The First Stones makes a significant contribution to the study of tomb building treatment of the dead place making the relationship of monuments to landscape local and regional identities connections and affiliations across southern Britain and the adjacent continent and Neolithization in western Britain Viewed within the context of tombs within the Cotswold Severn tradition as a whole it leads to an appreciation of the local and regional distinctiveness of architecture and mortuary practice exhibited by the tombs in this area of south east Wales emerging as part of the intake of a significant inland area in the early centuries of the Neolithic

Edward Berenson,2025-04-22 The rise and fall of William J Levitt the man who made the suburban house a mass commodity Two material artifacts defined the middle class American lifestyle in the mid twentieth century the automobile which brought gas stations highways commercial strips and sprawl and the single family suburban home the repository of many families long term wealth While the man who did the most to make the automobile a mass commodity Henry Ford is well known few know the story of the man who did the same for the suburban house Edward Berenson describes the remarkable career of William Levitt who did more than anyone else to create the modern suburb In response to an unprecedented housing shortage as veterans returned home from World War II his Levittown developments provided inexpensive mass produced housing that was wildly popular prospective buyers would camp out in line for two days for the chance to put down a deposit on a Levitt house He was a celebrity a life changing hero to tens of thousands and the pitchman of a renewed American Dream But Levitt also shared Ford s dark side He refused to allow Black people to buy or rent in his developments and doggedly defended this practice against legal challenges Leading the way for other developers who emulated his actions he helped ensure that suburbs nationwide remained white enclaves These legacies are still with us Levitt made a major contribution to the stubborn wealth disparity between white families and Black families and his solution to the housing crisis of the 1940s the detached house and surrounding yard is a primary cause of the housing crisis today As a person Levitt was a strangely guileless and tragic figure He accumulated vast wealth but after losing control of his building company surrendered it all through foolish investments and a lavish lifestyle that included a Long Island mansion and a two hundred foot yacht Just weeks before his death as a charity patient in a hospital to which he had once given millions he was still imagining his great comeback The Book of Farm-Buildings: Their Arrangement and Construction.
