Fish People Linguistic Exogamy And Tukanoan Identity In Northwest Amazonia:

The Fish People Jean E. Jackson, 1983-09-30 The Bar or Fish People of the Northwest Amazon form part of an unusual network of intermarrying local communities scattered along the rivers of this region Each community belongs to one of sixteen different groups that speak sixteen different languages and marriages must take place between people not only from different communities but with different primary languages In a network of this sort which defies the usual label of tribe social identity assumes a distinct and unusual configuration In this book Jean Jackson's incisive discussions of Bar marriage kinship spatial organization and other features of the social and geographic landscape show how Tukanoans as participants in the network are collectively known conceptualize and tie together their universe of widely scattered communities and how an individual's identity emerges in terms of relations with others As theoretically challenging as it is unique the Tukanoan system bears on a wide range of issues of current anthropological concern such as how to analyze open ended regional systems in small scale societies ideal versus actual patterns of behaviour identity as both structure and action and indigenous use of multiple even conflicting models of social structure Professor Jackson's thoughtful discussions also extend to broader social scientific issues concerning the relation of language to culture the presence or absence of individualism in pre state societies the nature of ethnic boundaries the interplay between observation of behaviour and its interpretation on the part of both native and anthropologist and the achievement of flexibility and self interested goals while applying seemingly rigid social structural principles

Amerindian Socio-Cosmologies between the Andes, Amazonia and Mesoamerica Ernst Halbmayer, 2020-01-10 This book offers a new anthropological understanding of the socio cosmological and ontological characteristics of the Isthmo Colombian Area beyond established theories for Amazonia the Andes and Mesoamerica It focuses on a core region that has been largely neglected by comparative anthropology in recent decades Centering on relations between Chibchan groups and their neighbors the contributions consider prevailing socio cosmological principles and their relationship to Amazonian animism and Mesoamerican and Andean analogism Classical notions of area homogeneity are reconsidered and the book formulates an overarching proposal for how to make sense of the heterogeneity of the region's indigenous groups Drawing on original fieldwork and comparative analysis the volume provides a valuable anthropological addition to archaeological and linguistic knowledge of the Isthmo Colombian Area

Gender in Amazonia and Melanesia Thomas Gregor, Donald Tuzin, 2001-11 Amazonia and Melanesia are half a world in distance yet their cultures bear similarities in the areas of sex and gender This work looks at ways in which sex and gender are elaborated obsessed over and internalized

Amazonian Indians from Prehistory to the Present Anna Roosevelt, 2022-05-10 Amazonia has long been a focus of debate about the impact of the tropical rain forest environment on indigenous cultural development This edited volume draws on the subdisciplines of anthropology to present an integrated perspective of Amazonian studies The contributors address transformations of native societies as a result of their interaction with Western civilization from initial contact to the present day demonstrating that the pre and postcontact characteristics of these societies display differences that until now have been little recognized

The Indians of Central and South America
 James S. Olson, 1991-06-17

At a juncture in history when much interest and attention is focused on Central and South American political ecological social and environmental concerns this dictionary fills a major gap in reference materials relating to Amerindian tribes This one volume reference collects important information about the current status of the indigenous peoples of Central and South America and offers a chronology of the conquest of the Amerindian tribes a list of tribes by country and an extensive bibliography of surviving American Indian groups Historical as well as contemporary descriptions of approximately 500 existing tribes or groups of people are provided along with several bibliographic citations at the conclusion of each entry The focus of the volume is on those Indian groups that still maintain a sense of tribal identity For the vast majority of his entries James S Olson draws material from the Smithsonian Institution s seven volume Handbook of South American Indians as well as other classic resources of a broad general nature Much attention is also focused on the complicated question of South American languages and on the definition of what constitutes an Indian Olson s introduction cites dozens of valuable reference works relating to these topics Following the introduction this survey of surviving Amerindians is divided into sections that contain entries for each existing tribe or group an appendix listing tribes by country the Amerindian conquest chronology and a bibliographical essay This unique reference work should be an important item for most public college and university libraries It will be welcomed by reference librarians historians anthropologists and their students

Social Lives in Language □ Sociolinguistics and multilingual speech communities Miriam Meyerhoff, Naomi Nagy, 2008-09-26 This volume offers a synthetic approach to language variation and language ideologies in multilingual communities Although the vast majority of the world's speech communities are multilingual much of sociolinguistics ignores this internal diversity This volume fills this gap investigating social and linguistic dimensions of variation and change in multilingual communities Drawing on research in a wide range of countries Canada USA South Africa Australia Papua New Guinea Solomon Islands Vanuatu it explores connections between the fields of creolistics language dialect contact and language acquisition how the study of variation and change particularly in cases of additive bilingualism is central to understanding social and linguistic issues in multilingual communities how changing language ideologies and changing demographics influence language choice and or language policy and the pivotal place of multilingualism in enacting social power and authority and a rich array of new empirical findings on the dynamics of multilingual speech communities

Variation in Indigenous Minority Languages James N. Stanford, Dennis Richard Preston, 2009 Indigenous minority languages have played crucial roles in many areas of linguistics phonetics phonology morphology syntax typology and the ethnography of communication Such languages have however received comparatively little attention from quantitative or variationist sociolinguistics Without the diverse perspectives that underrepresented language communities can provide our understanding of language variation and change will be incomplete To help fill this gap and develop broader viewpoints this anthology presents 21 original fieldwork based studies of a wide range of indigenous languages in the framework of quantitative sociolinguistics The studies illustrate how such understudied communities can provide new insights into language variation and change with respect to socioeconomic status gender age clan lack of a standard exogamy contact with dominant majority languages internal linguistic factors and many other topics

The Linguistics of Temperature Maria Koptjevskaja-Tamm, 2015-02-11 The volume is the first comprehensive typological study of the conceptualisation of temperature in languages as reflected in their systems of central temperature terms hot cold to freeze etc The key issues addressed here include questions such as how languages categorize the temperature domain and what other uses the temperature expressions may have e g when metaphorically referring to emotions warm words The volume contains studies of more than 50 genetically areally and typologically diverse languages and is unique in considering cross linguistic patterns defined both by lexical and grammatical information The detailed descriptions of the linguistic and extra linguistic facts will serve as an important step in teasing apart the role of the different factors in how we speak about temperature neurophysiology cognition environment social cultural practices genetic relations among languages and linguistic contact The book is a significant contribution to semantic typology and will be of interest for linguists psychologists anthropologists and philosophers

Transforming Indigeneity Sarah Shulist, 2018-03-01 Transforming

Indigeneity is an examination of the role that language revitalization efforts play in cultural politics in the small city of São Gabriel da Cachoeira located in the Brazilian Amazon. Sarah Shulist concentrates on how debates, discussions, and practices aimed at providing support for the Indigenous languages of the region shed light on both global issues of language revitalization and on the meaning of Indigeneity in contemporary Brazil. With 19 Indigenous languages still spoken today, São Gabriel is characterized by a high proportion of Indigenous people and an extraordinary amount of linguistic diversity. Shulist investigates what it means to be Indigenous in this setting of urbanization, multilingualism, and state intervention, and how that relates to the use and transmission of Indigenous languages. Drawing on perspectives from Indigenous and non-Indigenous political leaders, educators, students, and state agents, and by examining the experiences of urban populations, Transforming Indigeneity provides insight on the revitalization of Amazonian Indigenous languages amidst large social change.

The Oxford Handbook of Language and Society Ofelia García, Nelson Flores (Linguist), Massimiliano Spotti, 2017. This book challenges basic concepts that have informed the study of sociolinguistics. It proposes a critical poststructuralist perspective that examines the socio-historical context that led to the emergence of dominant sociolinguistic concepts and develops new theoretical and methodological tools that challenge these dominant concepts.

Bilingual Couples Talk Ingrid Piller, 2002-10-10. This sociolinguistic study of the linguistic practices of bilingual couples describes the conditions, processes, and results of private language contact. It is based on a unique corpus of more than 20 hours of private conversations between partners in bilingual marriages. Adding to its breadth of coverage, these private conversations are supplemented with larger public discourses about international couplehood. The volume thus offers a corpus-driven investigation of the ways in which ideologies of gender, nationality, and immigration mediate linguistic performances in private cross-cultural communication. The author embraces social constructionist, feminist, and postmodern approaches to second language learning, multilingualism, and cross-cultural communication. In contrast to other titles in the field, which have focused almost exclusively on the socialization of bilingual children, this book explores what it means to one's sense of self to become socialized into a second language and culture as a late bilingual.

The Wanano Indians of the Brazilian Amazon Janet M. Chernela, 2010-01-01. The Wanano Indians of the northwest Amazon have a social system that differs from those of most tropical forest tribes. Neither stratified by wealth nor strictly egalitarian, Wanano society is ranked according to rigidly bound descent groups. In this pioneering ethnographic study, Janet M. Chernela decodes the structure of Wanano society. In Wanano culture, children can be grandparents while elders can be grandchildren. This apparent contradiction springs from the fact that descent from ranked ancestors, rather than age or accumulated wealth, determines one's standing in Wanano society. But ranking's impulse is muted as senior clans, considered to be succulent, referring to both seniority and resource abundance, must be generous gift-givers. In this way, resources are distributed throughout the society. In two poignant chapters aptly entitled Ordinary Dramas, Chernela shows that rank is a site of contest, resulting in exile, feuding, personal shame and even death Thus Chernela s account is dynamic placing rank in historic as well as personal context As the deforestation of the Amazon continues the Wanano and other indigenous peoples face growing threats of habitat destruction and eventual extinction If these peoples are to be saved they must first be known and valued The Wanano Indians of the Brazilian Amazon is an important step in that direction

Indigenous Alliance Making James Andrew Whitaker, Mark Harris, 2025-10-14 During the colonial and postcolonial eras local people in lowland South America experienced exploitation from outsiders But as new kinds of societies emerged from engagements between outside and Indigenous communities Indigenous Amazonians formed strategic alliances to defend livelihoods territory and symbolic values as well as to curb exploitation predation and threats The contributors in Indigenous Alliance Making bring together historical analyses with anthropological investigations to explore the organizational patterns goals and strategies through which Indigenous people have intentionally created various alliances partnerships and similar relations with outsiders in lowland South America Emphasizing class ethnicity gender and race the chapters bring new dimensions to understanding a vital but understudied region Through missions war and broader conflict as well as marriage and kinship local people aimed to maintain control even as personal and collective transformations unfolded This volume explores the formation of diverse historical relations across regional societies within past and contemporary contexts and contributes to a growing historiographical turn among anthropologists and historians that foregrounds agency in past and present understandings of Indigenous peoples engagements with others in lowland South America Contributors Marta Amoroso Elisa Fr hauf Garcia Mark Harris Kris Lane Camila Loureiro Dias Cecilia McCallum Gary Van Valen Aparecida Vila a James Andrew Whitaker

Intercultural Communication Ingrid Piller, 2017-06-27 Combining perspectives from discourse analysis and sociolinguistics the second edition of this popular textbook provides students with an up to date overview of the field of intercultural communication Ingrid Piller explains communication in context using two main approaches The first treats cultural identity difference and similarity as discursive constructions The second informed by bilingualism studies highlights the use and prestige of different languages and language varieties as well as the varying access that speakers have to them

Mobility and Migration in Indigenous Amazonia Miguel N. Alexiades, 2009 Contrary to ingrained academic and public assumptions wherein indigenous lowland South American societies are viewed as the product of historical emplacement and spatial stasis there is widespread evidence to suggest that migration and displacement have been the norm and not the exception This original and thought provoking collection of case studies examines some of the ways in which migration and the concomitant processes of ecological and social change have shaped and continue to shape human environment relations in Amazonia Drawing on a wide range of historical time frames from pre conquest times to the present and ethnographic contexts different chapters examine the complex and important links between migration and the classification management and domestication of plants and landscapes as well as the incorporation and transformation of environmental knowledge practices ideologies and identities The Abandoned Narcotic Ron Brunton,1989 In this book Ron Brunton attempts to explain the strange geographical distribution of kava a narcotic drink once widely consumed by south west Pacific islanders Translation and Ethnography Tullio Maranhão,Bernhard Streck,2003-10-01 To most people translation means making the words of one language understandable in another but translation in a broader sense seeing strangeness and incorporating it into one s understanding is perhaps the earliest task of the human brain This book illustrates the translation process in less common contexts cultural religious even the translation of pain Its original contributions seek to trace human understanding of the self of the other and of the stranger by discovering how we bridge gaps within or between semiotic systems Translation and Ethnography focuses on issues that arise when we attempt to make significant thematic or symbolic elements of one culture meaningful in terms of another Its chapters cover a wide range of topics all stressing the interpretive practices that enable the approximation of meaning the role of differential power of language and so called world view and of translation itself as a metaphor of many contemporary cross cultural processes The topics covered here represent a global sample of translation ranging from Papua New Guinea to South America to Europe Some of the issues addressed include postcolonial translation transculturation from the perspective of colonized languages as in the Mexican Zapatista movement mis translations of Amerindian conceptions and practices in the Amazon illustrating the subversive potential of anthropology as a science of translation Ethiopian oracles translating divine messages for the interpretation of believers and dreams and clowns as translation media among the Gamk of Sudan Anthropologists have long been accustomed to handling translation chains in this book they open their diaries and show the steps they take toward knowledge Translation and Ethnography raises issues that will shake up the most obdurate objectivist translators and stimulate scholars in sociolinguistics communication ethnography and other fields who face the challenges of conveying meaning across human boundaries Indigenous Churches Élise Capredon,César Ceriani Cernadas,Minna Opas,2023-01-01 This book raises the question of what an Indigenous church is and how its members define their ties of affiliation or separation Establishing a pioneering dialogue between Amazonian and Gran Chaco studies on Indigenous Christianity the contributions address historical processes cosmological conceptions ritual practices leadership dynamics and material formations involved in the creation and diversification of Indigenous churches Instead of focusing on the study of missionary ideologies and praxis the book explores Indigenous peoples interpretations of Christianity and the institutional arrangements they make to create expand or dismantle their churches In doing so the volume offers a South American contribution to the theoretical project of the anthropology of Christianity especially as it relates to the issue of denominationalism and inter denominational relations

Time and Complexity in Historical Ecology William Balée,Clark L. Erickson,2006-06-22 This collection of studies by anthropologists botanists ecologists and biologists is an important contribution to the emerging field of historical ecology The book combines cutting edge research with new perspectives to emphasize the close relationship between humans and their natural environment Contributors examine how alterations in the natural world mirror human cultures societies and languages Treating the landscape like a text these researchers decipher patterns and meaning in the Ecuadorian Andes Amazonia the desert coast of Peru and other regions in the neotropics They show how local peoples have changed the landscape over time to fit their needs by managing and modifying species diversity enhancing landscape heterogeneity and controlling ecological disturbance In turn the environment itself becomes a form of architecture rich with historical and archaeological significance Time and Complexity in Historical Ecology explores thousands of years of ecological history while also addressing important contemporary issues such as biodiversity and genetic variation and change Engagingly written and expertly researched this book introduces and exemplifies a unique method for better understanding the link between humans and the biosphere Language Contact. Volume 2 Jeroen Darquennes, Joseph C. Salmons, Wim Vandenbussche, 2025-04-21 Targeting a full range of students and scholars this volume provides a total of 50 chapters illustrating the linguistic dynamics and the dynamics of inter individual and societal language contact as well as the dynamics of multidisciplinary language contact studies Fueled by a wealth of data from a rich variety of contact situations its geographically balanced case studies are governed by the triangulation between a focus on language structure and change a sincere drive of sociopolitical and academic agency and the confrontation with an everyday reality that can be unkind to and ignorant of those two factors The volume clearly demonstrates the social relevance of our trade in a time burdened with ecolinguistic challenges
