Sustainably
Managed

MPAs SUPPORT LIVELIHOODS

In Apo Island, Philippines, fishers have doubled their catch rate 30 years after the MPA was created. As a result, they go out to sea less, leaving less fuel and time.

A global review shows that well managed MPAs can substantially increase fish stock density, biomass and species richness.

MPAs CAN PUMP FISH INTO ADJACENT AREAS

As fish populations recover within MPAs, juveniles and adults can spill over across the boundaries and replenish fishing grounds.

EXAMPLE: APO ISLAND PROTECTED AREA, PHILIPPINES

Burgomasters and jacksnappers represent 40-70% of local fishery yields.

Since the MPA was established, their population has tripled.

resulting in an increase in catch per unit effort of

+50%

MPAs CAN EXPORT LARVAE INTO ADJACENT AREAS

Larger fish within MPAs produce disproportionately more eggs and larvae. Some larvae then drift to fished areas.

EXAMPLE: GREAT BARRIER REEF PROTECTED AREA, AUSTRALIA

The coral trout and the emperor snapper are important locally.

Local MPAs produce a 100% of total juvenile recruitment in nearby fished areas.

Currently, 9000+ people in coastal Marine Protected Areas and adjacent fished areas rely on fishing for their livelihoods. For people whose livelihoods rely on habitat and species.

Federal Conservation and Management of Marine Fisheries in the United States John P. Wise, 1991 Improving the Use of the "Best Scientific Information Available" Standard in Fisheries Management National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Ocean Studies Board, Committee on Defining Best Scientific Information Available for Fisheries Management, 2004-09-03 Under the Magnuson Stevens Fisheries Conservation and Management Act FCMA managers are required to use the best scientific information available in the preparation of federal fishery management plans National Standard 2 in the FCMA However the Act provides no further guidance as to how conformance to this standard should be determined Because adherence to this standard has often been contentious Congress has considered adding a definition for what constitutes best scientific information available in the reauthorization of the FCMA This report examines both the current application and the controversy over the standard and concludes that a legislative definition would be too inflexible to accommodate regional differences and future advances in science and technology Instead the report recommends that NOAA Fisheries adopt procedural guidelines to ensure that the scientific information used in the development of fishery management plans is relevant and timely and is the product of processes characterized by inclusiveness transparency and openness timeliness and peer review
