Words: 582    Study Level: College

Subject: Education

Much has been told about the global climate change during the last several decades. The humanity consumed too much, exploited the invaluable natural resources not giving anything in return. While the significant amount of researchers, the world leaders, and their supporters emphasize the importance of more active actions, the vast majority of people prefer to stay aside of the environmental problems. But the truth is that there is no more time left to be careless and indifferent. As it can be seen from The 11th Hour documentary, the global warming, and air pollution are the most crucial commonly perceived problems. The global warming caused mainly by the increased level of carbon dioxide emissions, that gather in the atmosphere and make the Earth surface hotter, the glaciers melting and the air poisoned. The precipitation level decreases and that makes the soil dr...
