Giving Full Measure To Countermeasures:

Giving Full Measure to Countermeasures National Research Council, Institute of Medicine, Board on Life Sciences, Medical Follow-up Agency, Committee on Accelerating the Research, Development, and Acquisition of Medical Countermeasures Against Biological Warfare Agents, 2004-04-06 In recent years substantial efforts have been initiated to develop new drugs vaccines and other medical interventions against biological agents that could be used in bioterrorist attacks against civilian populations According to a new congressionally mandated report from the Institute of Medicine and National Research Council of the National Academies to successfully develop these drugs vaccines and other medical interventions against biowarfare agents Congress should authorize the creation of a new agency within the Office of the Secretary of the U S Department of Defense The committee recommended that Congress should improve liability protections for those who develop and manufacture these products to stimulate willingness to invest in new research and development for biowarfare protection Giving Full Measure to Countermeasures also identifies other challenges such as the need for appropriate animal models and laboratories equipped with high level biosafety protections that will require attention if DoD efforts to develop new medical countermeasures are to be successful Living Weapons Gregory D. Koblentz, 2011-05-16 Biological weapons are widely feared yet rarely used Biological weapons were the first weapon prohibited by an international treaty yet the proliferation of these weapons increased after they were banned in 1972 Biological weapons are frequently called the poor man s atomic bomb yet they cannot provide the same deterrent capability as nuclear weapons One of my goals in this book is to explain the underlying principles of these apparent paradoxes from Living Weapons Biological weapons are the least well understood of the so called weapons of mass destruction Unlike nuclear and chemical weapons biological weapons are composed of or derived from living organisms In Living Weapons Gregory D Koblentz provides a comprehensive analysis of the unique challenges that biological weapons pose for international security At a time when the United States enjoys overwhelming conventional military superiority biological weapons have emerged as an attractive means for less powerful states and terrorist groups to wage asymmetric warfare Koblentz also warns that advances in the life sciences have the potential to heighten the lethality and variety of biological weapons The considerable overlap between the equipment materials and knowledge required to develop biological weapons conduct civilian biomedical research and develop biological defenses creates a multiuse dilemma that limits the effectiveness of verification hinders civilian oversight and complicates threat assessments Living Weapons draws on the American Soviet Russian South African and Iraqi biological weapons programs to enhance our understanding of the special challenges posed by these weapons for arms control deterrence civilian military relations and intelligence Koblentz also examines the aspirations of terrorist groups to develop these weapons and the obstacles they have faced Biological weapons Koblentz argues will continue to threaten international security until defenses against such weapons are improved governments can reliably detect biological weapon activities the proliferation of materials and expertise is limited and international norms against the possession and use of biological weapons are strengthened

Preventing a Biochemical Arms Race Alexander Kelle, Kathryn Nixdorff, Malcolm Dando, 2012-10-31 Preventing a Biochemical Arms Race responds to a growing concern that changes in the life sciences and the nature of warfare could lead to a resurgent interest in chemical and biological weapons CBW capabilities By bringing together a wide range of historical material and current literature in the field of CBW arms control the book reveals how these two disparate fields might be integrated to precipitate a biochemical arms race among major powers rogue states or even non state actors It seeks to raise awareness among policy practitioners the academic community and the media that such an arms race may be looming if developments are left unattended and to provide policy options on how it and its devastating consequences could be avoided After identifying weaknesses in the international regime structures revolving around the Biological Weapons and Chemical Weapons Conventions it provides policy proposals to deal with gaps and shortcomings in each prohibition regime individually and then addresses the widening gap between them

Considerations for Ensuring Safety and Efficacy of Vaccines and Therapeutic Proteins Manufactured by Using Platform Approaches National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Life Sciences, 2010-07-09 A major goal of the US Department of Defense DOD Transformational Medical Technologies Initiative TMTI is to develop countermeasures that will protect military personnel against bioweapons including specific infectious disease agents and toxins An explicit TMTI objective is to respond quickly to such threats by producing an appropriate amount of an effective countermeasure currently defined as enough material to treat or vaccinate 3 million personnel within 12 months of identification of a specific threat DOD officials call for TMTI programs to be up and running by 2014 The National Academies hosted a workshop which brought together scientists from academe government and the biotechnology industry to identify and discuss challenges and ideas related to the TMTI's vision of developing countermeasures within a few months after an agent is identified The workshop focused on manufacturing processes and specifically on the development of manufacturing platforms repeatable components of manufacturing that reduce both development time and risk An underlying assumption was that demonstrating that integrated platforms can reliably produce safe and efficacious countermeasures might shorten the regulatory approval process The workshop is summarized in this book

American Biodefense Frank L. Smith III, 2014-09-19 Biological weapons have threatened U S national security since at least World War II Historically however the U S military has neglected research development acquisition and doctrine for biodefense Following September 11 and the anthrax letters of 2001 the United States started spending billions of dollars per year on medical countermeasures and biological detection systems But most of this funding now comes from the Department of Health and Human Services rather than the Department of Defense Why has the U S military neglected biodefense and allowed civilian organizations to take the lead in defending the country against biological attacks In American Biodefense Frank L. Smith III addresses this puzzling and largely untold story about science technology and national security Smith argues that organizational frames and stereotypes have caused both military neglect and the rise of civilian biodefense In the armed services influential ideas about kinetic warfare have undermined defense against biological warfare The influence of these ideas on science and technology challenges the conventional wisdom that national security policy is driven by threats or bureaucratic interests Given the ideas at work inside the U S military Smith explains how the lessons learned from biodefense can help solve other important problems that range from radiation weapons to cyber attacks Biodefense Research Supporting the DoD Coleen K. Martinez,2007 Disposition of the Air Force Health Study Institute of Medicine,Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice,Committee on the Disposition of the Air Force Health Study,2006-05-25 The Vietnam War was fought in a jungle environment that provided cover to the enemy and made battlefield observations difficult so military strategists used herbicides to remove foliage along key roads and waterways defoliate areas surrounding enemy bases and supply and communications routes and improve visibility in heavily canopied forests The last three decades have seen an ongoing debate about the effects of this military use of herbicides and the potential adverse long term health effects on those who may have been exposed to these herbicides In response to these concerns the Air Force Health Study AFHS was created to investigate the potential relationship between the herbicides used and the health problems of those exposed Disposition of the Air Force Health Study assesses the scientific merit of the AFHS operations and procedures and makes recommendations for improvement Biodefense United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions. Subcommittee on Bioterrorism and Public Health Preparedness,2005

Biocrisis Albert J. Mauroni,2022-04-08 This book examines the recent intersection of national security and public health regarding biological threats to the U S populace and proposes improvements to the executive and legislative development of U S policy addressing biological threat mitigation Over the last 20 years the national security community has engaged with disease related issues that have traditionally been the scope of public health agencies The federal government s response has been to create a single national biodefense strategy which has been largely ineffective in improving conditions due to poor terminology a lack of leadership and a failure to assess government programs Applying a public policy framework Albert J Mauroni examines how the government addresses biological threats including disease prevention bioterrorism response military biodefense biosurety and agricultural biosecurity and food safety He proposes a new approach to countering biological threats arguing that lead agencies should focus on implementing discrete portfolios with annual assessments against clear and achievable objectives Twenty-first Century Biological Threats United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions. Subcommittee on Bioterrorism and Public Health Preparedness,2005

Protecting the Frontline in Biodefense Research National Research Council,Division on Earth and Life Studies,Board on Life Sciences,Committee on Special Immunizations Program for Laboratory Personnel Engaged in Research on Countermeasures for Select Agents,2011-07-23 The U S Army s Special Immunizations Program is an important component of an overall biosafety program for laboratory workers at risk of exposure to hazardous pathogens The program provides immunizations to scientists laboratory technicians and other support staff who work with certain hazardous pathogens and toxins Although first established to serve military personnel the program was expanded through a cost sharing agreement in 2004 to include other government and civilian workers reflecting the expansion in biodefense research in recent years

Protecting the Frontline in Biodefense Research examines issues related to the expansion of the Special Immunizations Program considering the regulatory frameworks under which the vaccines are administered how additional vaccines might be considered for inclusion in the Program and factors that might influence the development and manufacturing of vaccines for the Special Immunizations Program Biological Threats United States. Scheipers,2014-04-01 Post heroism is often perceived as one of the main aspects of change in the character of war a phenomenon prevalent in western societies According to this view demographic and cultural changes in the west have severely decreased the tolerance for casualties in war This edited volume provides a critical examination of this idea
