High-Tech Europe Wayne Sandholtz, 2024-06-04 Governments have recognized for decades the dynamic role played by microelectronics computers and telecommunications in the modern economy Although Europe's deficiencies in these crucial sectors had long been acknowledged it was not until the 1980s that European nations began collaborating to develop and promote high tech industries Their collaboration gives rise to many questions Why for example did the joint efforts come at such a late date rather than in the 1960s or 70s And how is it possible to work together in economically sensitive areas These questions point to fundamental issues in the areas of international cooperation international institutions and technology policy Before the institution of the collaborative programs ESPRIT European Strategic Programme for Research and Development in Information Technology RACE R D in Advanced Communications technologies in Europe and EUREKA European Research Coordination Agency in the 1980s each European country sought its own technological renaissance through protection of national firms behind walls of technical standards procurement preferences and research subsidies This thorough carefully researched work examines the breakdown of these walls It will appeal to political scientists economists and scholars of technology and Western Europe interested in the political contours of the high tech landscape This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1992

Multinationals in the New Europe and Global Trade Michael W. Klein, Paul J.J. Welfens, 2012-12-06 After a decade of Eurosclerosis the EC is moving with renewed economic growth and increasing multinational investment toward a single European market under the heading Project 1992 The creation of a single EC market creates dynamic adjustment needs and opens up new opportunities for international business in a period of intensified global competition and dramatic politico economic changes Since the mid 1980s Eastern Europe is undergoing a radical shift towards market based economic systems a difficult and fragile development so far which is further complicated by economic and political unification of Germany in central Europe After the era of British and later U S leadership in multinational investment German and Japanese multinational companies are becoming more influential players worldwide

Firms from Germany play a special role because German unification of 1990 implies a bigger home market but also the diversion of total investment activities towards the greater German home market. While the political divide of Europe has ceased to exist, the economic division is becoming more apparent and it could indeed transitorily increase because the EC 1992 project primarily generates growth impulses in Western Europe while systemic transformations in Eastern Europe reduce output growth in the short term.

Globalization, Foreign Direct Investment and Technology Transfers Nagesh Kumar, 2003-08-29 In this book Nagesh Kumar and expert contributors examine and explain the emerging patterns in international technology transfers and foreign direct investment flows (FDIs) over the past two decades. They analyse the trends in internationalization of corporate activity in individual source countries, discussing outflows from both major and emerging source countries. This departs from the existing treatments of FDI as homogenous resource and allows for a more detailed prediction of future outflow patterns. Throughout the research focuses upon the implications of new trends for developing countries. Kumar concludes by outlining the policy implications for the governments of such countries seeking to mobilize technology and FDI for their industrialization and further integration into the international community. Controversially, he cautions against excessive optimism about the potential of FDI inflows as an agent of development. This book draws together much data and information which is not readily available and provides reflections upon international business negotiations from a developing country's perspective.

Convergence in European Digital TV Regulation Christopher T. Marsden, Stefaan G. Verhulst, 1999 Analyzing the role of governments in the regulation of the new Information Society, the ten chapters in this book stem from a seminar hosted by the European Media Regulation Seminar Group (ESRG) at the University of Warwick. Each chapter explores the regulatory responses of the UK government and the EU to commercial technical and market convergence in the broadcasting, telecommunications, print media, and computing sectors. The text focuses on the establishment of satellite pay TV, telecommunications, and the launch of digital terrestrial TV as they blend real and cyber governance.

Interest Representation in the European Union Justin Greenwood, 2017-09-16 Why is the EU so reliant upon exchanges with interest organisations? What safeguards have been developed to prevent capture by special interests and how effective are these? How does the EU system of interest representation compare with those of other systems and what are its unique features? The fully revised fourth edition of this highly acclaimed book provides an authoritative and comprehensive assessment of the role of organized interests in the EU. Showing that interest representation is a key aspect of the European project, it examines the significance of interests for everyday policy making for European integration and for the democratic legitimacy of the EU. Accessibly written and thoroughly updated, the new edition contains additional material on the regulation of lobbying and the European Transparency Register.
