Evaluating Justice Canadian Policies And Programs:

Politics and Practices of Intergovernmental Evaluation Olaf Rieper, Jacques Toulemonde, 2018-04-17 Great intellectual effort has gone into the development of sophisticated designs and methodologies to study individual policies programs and projects Costly efforts to find the smallest evidence of a policy or program impact have been undertaken in the presumption that such data are central to policy decision making Meanwhile the intergovernmental nature of political and policy governance has been ignored Whether it is Canada the United States England Denmark Sweden Germany Japan or any other industrial country the governmental structure is essentially a web of interrelated policies programs and projects To understand local responsibilities and requirements one must also understand the role that regional and national governmental agencies and administrations play Politics and Practice of Intergovernmental Evaluation is a landmark work in the area of the evaluation of intergovernmental policies programs and projects Comparative and cross national in its perspective the material presented here not only provides a systematic theoretical and empirical treatment of intergovernmental evaluation but does so with case material from seven nations and the European Union No other such comparative work exists on this topic Contributors include Jan Eric Furubo Mary Henkel Linda G Morra Robert V Segsworth and Dale H Poel and Willi Zimmermann and Peter Knoepfel The Politics and Practice of Intergovernmental Evaluation will be of interest to political theorists policymakers and scholars and students of government and the evaluation community

Evaluating Justice Julian V. Roberts, Joe Hudson, 1993 There have been substantial developments in the field of program evaluation in Canada in recent years specifically in the evaluation of justice programs However there is very little published material available on program evaluations of justice programs in Canada Evaluating Justice Canadian Policies and Programs is intended to address this need and to serve as a supplementary text and reader that provides Canadian materials and cases illustrating basic principles for organizing and doing program evaluation research Practitioners in private practice and those employed in government as evaluators will find this book a useful source of information about the evaluation of justice programs in this country The book contains sections on the police courts and corrections Each chapter consists of case studies dealing with different substantive matters and justice programs undertaken in different parts of the country Each chapter presents basic information about the substantive program as well as the approach used in its formal evaluation Each chapter is written by a Canadian scholar or practitioner

Judicial Decision Making in Child Sexual Abuse Cases

Margaret M. Wright, 2011-11-01 In the 1980s Canada witnessed a public outcry over child sexual abuse cases that were being reported in the media Elected officials sought a remedy not through policy changes or other social mechanisms but rather through legal reforms Amendments were made to the Criminal Code of Canada and sexual assault was redefined The word rape was replaced with a continuum of sexual assault categories intended to reflect the full range of sexually intrusive behaviours Most women s groups having fought for recognition of harm done to women and children supported this legislation though some questioned the approach Margaret Wright examines how the courts have dealt with child sexual abuse cases since then and what effect the resort to law has had Analyzing the sentencing phase of these cases she demonstrates that although the laws may have changed their interpretation still depends on the social construction of children at the court level and on judges own understanding of what constitutes child sexual abuse Judicial Decision Making in Child Sexual Abuse Cases is a rich and detailed study of the court process that will be welcomed by students and scholars of law and society social work criminal justice and social policy Police Dennis Force, 2000-11 These essays address issues like police regionalization the role of police unions the use of police tactical units and the role of women in policing
