ABSTRACT

The comprehensive services offered by the Office of Student Affairs and Services (SAS) play a crucial role in supporting student welfare, development, and institutional needs to create a conducive learning environment. By evaluating the implementation and effectiveness of these services across different academic years, the research identifies strengths and areas for improvement to ensure they meet students' diverse needs and to provide insights and recommendations for enhancing student support systems within academic institutions. The study used a cross-sectional research design to compare the office of SAS programs across two academic years at San Isidro College. The study employed stratified random sampling to ensure representative participation from different courses. The sample includes 484 respondents from A.Y. 2022-2023 and 735 respondents from A.Y. 2023-2024. The study highlights significant improvements in student welfare, development, and institutional services at SIC between the academic years. Enhancements in various student services have led to higher levels of satisfaction and support, reflecting the effectiveness of initiatives implemented by the SAS office. Increased student engagement, better access to resources, and a more supportive campus environment are notable outcomes of these improvements. The SAS office's continuous efforts to assess and upgrade services have been successful in meeting evolving student needs. Overall, these advancements contribute to a holistic educational experience, promoting student retention, satisfaction, and success.
