Kohlmaier, Michael Weber, Richard A. Houghton, 2013-06-29 The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change IPCC has recently summarized the state of the art in research on climate change Climate Change 1995 The most up to date research findings have been divided into three volumes the Science of Climate Change working group I the Impacts Adaption and Mitigation of Climate Change working group II and the Economic and Social Dimensions of Climate Change working group III There is a general consensus that a serious change in climate can only be avoided if the future emissions of greenhouse gases are reduced considerably from the business as usual projection and if at the same time the natural sinks for greenhouse gases in particular that of CO₂ are maintained at the present level or 2 preferably increased Forests forestry and forestry industry are important parts of the global carbon cycle and therefore they are also part of the mitigation potentials in at least a threefold way 1 During the time period between 1980 and 1989 there was a net emission of CO₂ from changes in tropical land use mostly tropical deforestation of 2 1 6 1 GtC a but at the same time it was estimated that the forests in the northern hemisphere have taken up 0 5 0 5 GtC a and additionally other terrestrial sinks including tropical forests where no clearing took place have been a carbon sink of the order of 1 3 1 General Technical Report RM , 1993 Forests: Market and Intervention Failures Soren Wibe, Tom Jones, 2013-11-05 The economic value of forest has long been recognized but the ways in which that value is calculated and the management policies adopted in consequence have all too often resulted in overuse and irreversible destruction This is spectacularly obvious around the Mediterranean basin but it is also true in northern Europe These five case studies commissioned by the OECD examine failures of forest management in Britain Spain Italy Germany and Sweden They look at both market and intervention policies and show how each can further the destruction of the forests and they set out ways in which future policies can evade the mistakes of the past Originally published in 1992 Acid Rain J. Rose, 2019-10-29 Originally published in 1994 this volume includes contributions from environmental scientists consultants and research workers The incidence and effects of the phenomenon of acid rain in the late 1970s 80s and early 1990s as well as certain remedies are discussed at length The roles of vehicles and power stations are examined in detail and legal aspects of curbing acid rain are considered Timber Trends and Prospects for North America Canada. General Report International Labour Organisation. Forestry and Wood Industries Committee, 1990 Forestry and the Forest Industries: Past and Future E.G. Richards, 2012-12-06 In analysing the development and achievements of Polish forestry and forest industries over the last four decades it is necessary to take into consideration the situation prevailing after the end of the Second World War when these sectors of the national economy were starting their activities First of all it is necessary to consider the effects of the war such as the harvesting from the forests of the present Polish territory of 3 about 200 million m of merchantable wood which is equal to the normal harvest over a 12 year period b the destruction of over half the woodworking industrial potential In consequence the forested area inside the new Polish boundaries amounted 40 years ago only to 20.8 per cent of the whole area of the country There has been a continuing process of increasing the forested area of the country although at a diminishing rate In 1986 the forest area amounted to 27.7 per cent of the land surface that is to 8.7 million ha an increase of over 2 million ha in 40 years Intensive afforestation performed regardless of the ownership category of the land by the State forest service was aimed primarily at making good the losses in the forested area and the rational use of land not fit for agricultural purposes

Tropical Deforestation C. J. Jepma, 2014-02-04 The depletion of the tropical rain forests has attracted considerable attention in recent times and the serious consequences for the global biosphere are widely acknowledged Yet deforestation continues apace and in some areas for example southeast Asia the very existence of the forests is seriously threatened Contrary to popular belief evidence suggests that local economic and living conditions are more significant in this than timber exploitation for exports to the Northern countries Tropical Deforestation A Socio Economic Approach offers a new perspective on the economic imperatives which encourage indigenous populations to encroach upon their own forests and shows how action against deforestation must form part of a wider movement to improve both the living conditions of the local inhabitants and the durability of their national economies Part 1 offers an overview of the processes surrounding deforestation and an assessment of the current situation Part 2 analyses the land use issues and explains the socioeconomic imperatives in the affected regions In an absorbing conclusion Part 3 guides the reader through a series of hypothetical policy scenarios using a specially adapted economic computer model to predict which combinations of policies and trade arrangements might bring about a more beneficial state of affairs

Progress in Intercalation Research H.W. de Jong, 1993-03-31 If a book needs a third edition because the previous ones are sold out one may well question whether an introduction is necessary However the Structure of European Industry was meant to be a flexible book keeping it in tune with actual developments in the European Community Some explanation is therefore required Two new chapters on the services industry have been included to recognize the growing importance of what is fundamentally a bundle of industries It is also increasingly acknowledged that the motorcar industry for its efficiency and innovativeness is very much dependent on the numerous suppliers large and small of the component parts industry A chapter reflecting on the strengths and weaknesses of the European car supplying industries is therefore most welcome Finally European competition policy now fitted out with the Merger Control Regulation is moving more and more towards the centre of stage and the final chapter presents a survey of the aims and achievements of this type of policy up till now steadfastly developed by the EC Commission For the rest the chapters which were already in the previous edition have been updated and have partly been rewritten by the authors concerned The editor is most grateful to old and new contributors for their efforts to jointly produce a book which after 12 years is still unique in providing a European instead of a national focus on industries and markets
