Evaluating Educational Investment:

Evaluating Educational Investment J. Ronnie Davis, John F. Morrall, 1974 The Strategic Tool for Evaluating Educational Returns Axel Müller-Hofvenschiöld, 2012-12-06 Management education is a booming business More and more consultants are moving into this area forcing business schools to defend their traditional territory American schools are allying themselves with institutions in other parts of the world and setting up subsidiaries joint ventures and strategic alliances to leverage their know how On the business side the number of Corporate Universities establishments dedicated to management developmen is growing rapidly even in Europe In the battle to win talent companies want to show that they provide their top executives with the best chances of success However the picture is not all rosy These days every expense has to prove its value added and management education is no exception But as this analysis shows a more in depth evaluation than the happy sheet survey handed in at the end of a programme is difficult to compile First one needs to ask the question Who is the evaluation for e g the accounts department HR the participants or their superiors Another tricky question is Are you measuring HR indicators or programme learning goals It is not at all clear that learning goals even for customised programmes are tied to companies normal HR evaluation process often in the form of a balanced scorecard and the related incentive schemes the reason for this would require a thesis on its own Furthermore as this analysis has revealed

Evaluating Educational Technology Geneva D. Haertel, Barbara Means, 2003-09-26 Features chapters by today s leading authorities who outline research designs methodologies and types of assessments that can be used to more effectively evaluate educational technologies Empirical Methods for Evaluating Educational Interventions Gary D. Phye, Daniel H. Robinson, Joel Levin, 2005-04-22 New US government requirements state that federally funded grants and school programs must prove that they are based on scientifically proved improvements in teaching and learning All new grants must show they are based on scientifically sound research to be funded and budgets to schools must likewise show that they are based on scientifically sound research However the movement in education over the past several years has been toward qualitative rather than quantitative measures The new legislation comes at a time when researchers are ill trained to measure results or even to frame questions in an empirical way and when school administrators and teachers are no longer remember or were never trained to prove statistically that their programs are effective Experimental Methods for Evaluating Educational Interventions is a tutorial on what it means to frame a question in an empirical manner how one needs to test that a method works what statistics one uses to measure effectiveness and how to document these findings in a way so as to be compliant with new empirically based requirements The book is simplistic enough to be accessible to those teaching and administrative educational professionals long out of schooling but comprehensive and sophisticated enough to be of use to researchers who know experimental design and statistics but don t know how to use what they know to write acceptable grant proposals or to get governmental funding for their programs Provides an overview to interpreting empirical data in education Reviews data analysis techniques use and interpretation Discusses research on learning instruction and curriculum Explores importance of showing progress as well as cause and effect Identifies obstacles to applying research into practice Examines policy development for states nations and countries Economics of Education Dominic J.

Brewer, Patrick J. McEwan, 2010-01-26 A collection of short stand alone chapters divided into five sections including overview of the field private and social returns to human capital investments production costs and financing of education teachers and teacher labor markets and education markets choice and incentives The collection provides international perspectives that describe the origins of these subjects their major issues and proponents their landmark studies and opportunities for future research The 70 contributors are each well regarded economists whose research has advanced the topic on which they write and this book fulfills an undersupplied niche for a text in the economics of education The chapters come from the acclaimed International Encyclopedia of Education 3e 2010 edited by Eva Baker Barry McGaw and Penelope Peterson The Encyclopedia contains over 1 350 articles in 24 sections that stretch from educational philosophies and technologies to measurement leadership and national systems of education This single volume textbook presents a cohesive view of this increasingly important area of economics Superb contributions from well regarded economists convey unique and useful perspectives Chapters contain an extensive bibliography and further readings to enable interested researchers to extend their knowledge into each specific topic Methods of Evaluating Educational Technology Walt Heinecke, Laura Blasi, 2001-09-01 This volume gathers some of the methods being developed by evaluators from university settings and the private sector While providing models and methods these authors also raise larger questions such as How can schools meet the challenge of educating all children without being limited by the educational legacy of a one size fits all curriculum and normative testing More than documenting an apprenticeship to gadgetry evaluators are seeking to measure meaningful learning and changes in teaching investigating approaches that are not possible or that are less accessible when students are in traditional classrooms without technology In this first volume of the series Research Methods for Educational Technology RMET the contributing authors draw upon examples of their work evaluating the implementation and development of educational technology as well as the impact of policies and programs in this field Within this volume several authors have written about the implementation and evaluation of technology across cultures and national boundaries pointing to an area of research that will rapidly expand in this decade The concern for meeting the needs of policymakers is also apparent in several of these chapters but there is tension between providing them with positive results to support their efforts and reexamining the questions they are asking and how these questions are developed We know that evaluation is not the extended arm of public relations and yet it becomes clear that evaluators are often asked to demonstrate a project is successful on the threat that the funding will be cut While this decision making process fits the timetable of the fiscal year it does not acknowledge that evaluation can be formative and strengthen programs This timetable also ignores the investment of time that is needed when implementing innovations like the Internet into teaching and learning Many of the authors included in this volume write from the context of evaluating federally funded programs and they provide valuable insight for future projects which are created and evaluated at the state level As technology initiatives are developed and funded outside of the federal arena more evaluators will be called upon From approaches developed from federally funded projects we can build upon these methods and models for evaluation within regional projects to answer questions related to budgets and accountability As we answer these immediate questions we can move forward to examine the long term impact of technology and the possibility that exercises in conformity will replace the adventure of human enlightenment for our children
