Rogala,2016-08-01 The career of the German American painter and educator Hans Hofmann 1880 1966 describes the arc of artistic modernism from pre World War I Munich and Paris to mid twentieth century Greenwich Village His career also traces the transatlantic engagement of modern painting with the materials of its own making a relationship that is perhaps still not completely understood In these interrelated narratives Hofmann is a central protagonist providing a vital link between nineteenth and twentieth century art practice and between European and American modernism The remarkable vitality of his later work affords insight not only into the style but also the literal substance of this formative period of artistic and material innovation This richly illustrated book the fourth in the Getty Conservation Institute s Artist s Materials series presents a thorough examination of Hofmann s late career materials Initial chapters present an informative overview of Hofmann s life and work in Europe and America and discuss his crucial role in the development of Abstract Expressionism Subsequent chapters present a detailed analysis of Hofmann s materials and techniques and explore the relationship of the artist s mature palette to shifts in the style and aging characteristics of his paintings The book concludes with lessons for the conservation of modernist paintings generally and particularly those that incorporate both traditional and modern paint media This book will be of value to conservators art in 1909 he had been given 12 one man shows and had been included in four group exhibitions before the exhibit at Andover Subsequently he was to have 33 one man shows and to be in over 60 group exhibitions including the 1960 Venice Biennale in which he was one of the four artists chosen to represent America The catalogue of the 1948 retrospective at the Addison Gallery incorporated Hofmann's writings all originally written in German some pieces translated fluently others awkwardly paraphrasing the original He had written them over a period of 40 years for periodicals journals or his own teaching purposes occasionally they overlapped there was no sequence of development In the original volume of Search for the Real published in 1948 it was felt desirable to edit his writing as little as possible nevertheless to present the essays in the most lucid English true to his meaning printed only with his approval The Search for the Real in the Visual Arts Sculpture and Painting and Culture were all printed in full The section Excerpts from the Teaching of Hans Hofmann was composed of selections from his essays On the Aims of Art and Plastic Creation The last brief section Terms was gleaned from the other essays lectures diagrams notes and cryptic memoranda written to himself headed by one of Hoffman's diagrams It was a further distillation of his own definitions in the nature of a vocabulary In the last 18 years of his life recognition was his nationally and internationally in proportion to the originality and depth of his thinking his versatility and comprehensiveness his productivity and vigor His was a prophetic visual expression of action in a three dimensional world on a vibrating two dimensional surface He was a dynamic teacher the wide range of his influence is to be seen in the list of artists comprising an exhibition Hans Hofmann and His Students circulated in America and abroad during the three years before his death in 1966 Among the 32 painters and sculptors in this exhibition were students as varied in their developed personal idioms as Helen Frankenthaler Larry Rivers Louise Nevelson Richard Stankiewicz and Alan Kaprow Running simultaneously and also shown in South America and Europe as well as in the United States a one man show of 40 major works initiated by the Museum of Modern Art New York is a testimony to the words of the dean of the New York School of Abstract Expressionist Painting
