Paradox and Perception Carol L. Graham, Eduardo Lora, 2010-09-01 The quality of life concept of quality of life is a broad one It incorporates basic needs but also extends beyond them to include capabilities the livability of the environment and life appreciation and happiness Latin America s diversity in culture and levels of development provide a laboratory for studying how quality of life varies with a number of objective and subjective measures These measures range from income levels to job insecurity and satisfaction to schooling attainment and satisfaction to measured and self assessed health among others Paradox and Perception greatly improves our understanding of the determinants of well being in Latin America based on a broad quality of life concept that challenges some standard assumptions in economics including those about the relationship between happiness and income The authors analysis builds upon a number of new approaches in economics particularly those related to the study of happiness and finds a number of paradoxes as the region s respondents evaluate their well being These include the paradox of unhappy growth at the macroeconomic level happy peasants and frustrated achievers at the microlevel and surprisingly high levels of satisfaction with public services among the region s poorest They also have important substantive links with several of the region s realities such as high levels of income inequality volatile macroeconomic performance and low expectations of public institutions and faith in the capacity of the state to deliver Identifying these perceptions paradoxes and their causes will contribute to the crafting of better public policies as well as to our understanding of why populist politics still pervade in much of the region

intended audience Methods for extending brand messaging to wider audiences Ideas on how to make brands the engines of social capital getting rid of unsustainable practices to foster more sustainable patterns of consumer behaviour Suggestions for the development of a new brand strategy that reduces costs through innovative and lasting solutions to problems Unpublished data on the role of consumer trust in new products based on research carried out by the Havas Group across over 150 brands in nine different markets A wiki component to the book in an accompanying website Designed to forge stronger channels of dialogue and communication with customers and consumers the book is a must read for anyone committed to keeping their brand relevant in the twenty first century Population Aging Daniel Cotlear, 2010-12-13 Latin America and the Caribbean will soon face the challenges of an aging population This process which took over a century in the rich world will occur in two or three decades in the developing world seven of the 25 countries that will age more rapidly are in LAC Population aging will pose challenges and offer opportunities This book explores three sets of issues First is a group of issues related to the support of the aging and poverty in the life cycle This covers questions of work and retirement income and wealth and living arrangements and intergenerational transfers It also explores the relation between the life cycle and poverty Second is the question of the health transition How does the demographic transition impact the health status of the population and the demand for health care And how advanced is the health transition in LAC Third is an understanding of the fiscal pressures that are likely to accompany population aging and to disentangle the role of demography from the role of policy in that process This book provides an introduction to the concepts and techniques at the intersection of demography and economics It summarizes the policy debate about potential reforms needed to make population aging an opportunity for development Europeanism John McCormick, 2010-06-03 Europeanism offers a major new examination of the political economic and social norms and values associated with Europe and Europeans Progress or Collapse Roberto De Vogli, 2013-01-03 Human progress is heading toward collapse There are converging ecological crises looming on the horizon climate change peak oil water shortages fish depletion and food scarcities The world is on a collision course against the limits of the ecosystem Modern societies are consuming polluting and growing as if there is no tomorrow Indeed there may not be one In Progress or Collapse Roberto De Vogli guides us through the multiple converging global crises of economic progress He explores the connections between the environmental crisis and the psychological social cultural political and economic emergencies affecting modern societies It is not a coincidence the author argues that global ecological destruction is occurring in tandem with other crises rising mental disorders mindless consumerism rampant conformism status competition civic disengagement startling social inequalities global financial instability and widespread political impasse In this hard hitting analysis Roberto De Vogli identifies the root cause of all these symptoms of societal breakdown neoliberalism defined as market greed He argues that in recent decades modern societies have been dominated by a suicidal economic doctrine based on two articles of faith the greed creed and the market God The greed creed states that people are nothing but selfish profiteers in a perpetual search for status and wealth The market God is the belief that all societal and human affairs are best regulated as market exchanges What is to be done Can we stop progress toward collapse Given the current distribution of power and wealth and the state of psychological and political inertia in which we are trapped our chances of redefining progress around alternative values and embracing a new philosophy of life are slim Yet the history of human emancipation has often been shaped by giant leaps forward In the past civic struggles have overcome the limits of the possible Whether this will happen again in the future is the central question of our time This book will be of interest to researchers and students of ecology psychology public health epidemiology human development political philosophy economics sociology and politics

Ethics of Global Development David A. Crocker, 2008-07-10 Poverty inequality violence environmental degradation and tyranny continue to afflict the world Ethics of Global Development offers a moral reflection on the ends and means of local national and global efforts to overcome these five scourges After emphasizing the role of ethics in development studies policy making and practice David A Crocker analyzes and evaluates Amartya Sen s philosophy of development in relation to alternative ethical outlooks He argues that Sen s turn to robust ideals of human agency and democracy improves on both Sen s earlier emphasis on capabilities and functionings and Martha Nussbaum s version of the capability orientation This agency focused capability approach is then extended and strengthened by applying it to the challenges of consumerism and hunger the development responsibilities of affluent individuals and nations and the dilemmas of globalization Throughout the book the author argues for the importance of more inclusive and deliberative democratic institutions
