On Teaching that Works Feliks Tans, Agustinus Semun, Basri K., Hilda M. Nalley, and Patrisius Warduna, 2020-01-15 As its name shows that is On Teaching That Works this book is about teaching that hopefully can empower our students to be better in their life in and after their formal schooling To be better is of course not just dependent on teaching it also depends on learning That is students can indeed be better in and beyond schools if they learn harder smarter day by day throughout their life span Learning harder smarter is ideally the result of among other things how teachers teach their students This is why this book covers also some issues related to learning a process through which learners can move individually and or collectively from being dependent to being independent with characters that are universally acceptable In that sense although the focus of this book seems to be in and around the teaching and learning of writing in general in English as a foreign language EFL in particular it may also be relevant for those who are interested in educational issues in general like how a teacher can be an inspiring one and not just a good or a superior one Chapter Four or how our schools should be redesigned in order to make them more effective in empowering our students in and beyond their formal educational processes Chapter 9 We have to acknowledge that the articles presented in this book have been made public before either in academic journals or in academic seminars We believe that by transferring those articles into a book form the ideas we have discussed before can then have broader audience and therefore be more beneficial for its audience worldwide We believe however that this book is not a perfect one We are therefore looking forward to having any criticism from our readers to make it better in the future

Back to the Future Maria Assunção Flores, Ana Amélia Carvalho, Fernando Ilídio

Ferreira, Maria Teresa Vilaça, 2013-06-13 Schools and teachers are facing various challenges in a rapidly changing world. In such circumstances, discussing and sharing concerns of mutual interest regarding policy practice and research is crucial to creating more sophisticated understandings of the various challenges as a first step in the improvement of education. While the future should not be imprisoned in the past, the past does provide valuable lessons that will undergo new iterations in constructing the future. The future will be multi-faceted and complex, and the different chapters included in this book are intended to provide important contributions from which to build the future of education. The different chapters provide readers with international perspectives, frameworks, and empirical evidence of legacies, continuities, and changes in educational policy practice and research in teaching, teacher education, and learning. We hope that they inspire the readers to build the future and to change their own professional realities.

Cheryl J. Craig, Ph.D., Professor, University of Houston, Houston, TX, USA, Secretary, ISATT. This book metaphorically captures the looking backward to the past, pressing forward to the future that typically takes place on celebratory occasions. It causes us to pause and remember even as we race toward a time unknown to us. In a sense, the authors featured in this book serve as tour guides pointing out legacies, continuities, and changes in teaching and teacher education. I strongly urge readers not only to peruse the chapters that follow but to distill them to their essences and to glean what is of value to be learned from them. In conclusion, the ISATT Executive especially thanks the co-editors of this volume who have compiled a superb collection of chapters on a timely and relevant topic.

One Legacy of Paul F. Brandwein, Deborah C. Fort, 2010-02-16. Once again, our nation has a powerful need for a revolution devoted to creating scientists. As we face the challenges of climate change, global competitiveness, biodiversity loss, energy needs, and dwindling food supplies, we find ourselves in a period where both scientific literacy and the pool of next-generation scientists are dwindling. To solve these complex issues and maintain our own national security, we have to rebuild a national ethos based on sound science education for all from which a new generation of scientists will emerge. The challenge is how to create this transformation. Those shaping national policy today in 2009 need look no further than what worked a half century ago. In 1957, Sputnik circled and sent a clarion call for America to become the world's most technologically advanced nation. In 1958, Congress passed the National Defense Education Act, which focused the national will and called for scholars and teachers to successfully educate our youth in science, math, and engineering. It was during this time period that Paul F. Brandwein emerged as a national science education leader to lay the foundation for the changes needed in American education to create the future scientists essential to the nation's well-being.
