Bridging the Gap between Aristotle's Science and Ethics Devin Henry, Karen Margrethe Nielsen, 2015-05-05 This book consolidates emerging research on Aristotle's science and ethics in order to explore the extent to which the concepts methods and practices he developed for scientific inquiry and explanation are used to investigate moral phenomena Each chapter shows in a different way that Aristotle's ethics is much more like a science than it is typically represented The upshot of this is twofold First uncovering the links between Aristotle's science and ethics promises to open up new and innovative directions for research into his moral philosophy Second showing why Aristotle thinks ethics can never be fully assimilated to the model of science will help shed new light on his views about the limits of science The volume thus promises to make a significant contribution to our understanding of the epistemological metaphysical and psychological foundations of Aristotle's ethics

You Me and Tai Chi Howard Gibbon, 2011-06-30 By taking example from nature such as the trees insects animals rivers the sea and also from man's inventiveness the wheel the computer and our social structures Howard has expressed his own understanding of the Taoist principles The two composite factors of the Tao are the Yin and Yang and Howard has shown using the above examples how these elements are imbued on everything from the material to the immaterial Student of A Master is not a training manual but a viewpoint developed through personal experience and observations made from incidences occurring throughout Howard's life Until the death of Grand Master Chee Soo in August 1994 Howard had been one of his students since 1973 Through commitment and dedication and with personal training from Chee Soo Howard was awarded the highest grade issued by the Grand Master
