Department of the Interior U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 2013-05-21 The data in this estuarine profile on Humboldt Bay provides a scientific reference on the bay's natural resources and will aid in the management and protection of the estuary It provides current and historical information on the geographic setting of Humboldt Bay describes geological climatological hydrological and physicochemical aspects of the bay environment describes the biotic communities and the relationships compares and contrasts other west coast estuaries to Humboldt Bay provides management considerations in terms of procedures socioeconomic factors and environmental concerns and identifies research and management information gaps important to proper management and protection of the bay      The Ecology of Humboldt Bay, California Roger A. Barnhart, Milton J. Boyd, John E. Pequegnat, 1992 Humboldt Bay is one of California's largest coastal estuaries second only to San Francisco Bay in size The bay is important ecologically serving as habitat for many invertebrates fishes birds and mammals The bay attracts many recreational users and because it is an important shipping port also attracts industry particularly that related to forest products This report summarizes and synthesizes scientific data on the ecological relationships and functions of the estuary including information on geological climatological hydrologic and physical chemical aspects of the bay environment describes the biotic communities and their relationships compares and contrasts other west coast estuaries to Humboldt Bay provides management considerations in terms of procedures socioeconomic factors and environmental concerns and identifies research and management information gaps Portions of the bay are managed as a national wildlife refuge Management issues for this ecosystem includes loss of habitat and degradation of the environment by additional industrial development and nonpoint source pollution      An Ecological Characterization of the Pacific Northwest Coastal Region ,1980

Ecological Characterization of the Central and Northern California Coastal Region: pt.1 . Watersheds and basins, chapters 1-16. pt.2 . Watersheds and basins, chapters 17-29 ,1981      The Ecology of Marine Fishes Dr. Larry G. Allen, Dr. Michael H. Horn, 2006-02-15 Marine fishes have been intensively studied and some of the fundamental ideas in the science of marine ecology have emerged from the body of knowledge derived from this diverse group of organisms This unique authoritative and accessible reference compiled by 35 luminary ecologists evolutionary biologists and ichthyologists provides a synthesis and interpretation of the large often daunting body of information on the ecology of marine fishes The focus is on the fauna of the eastern Pacific especially the fishes of the California coast a group among the most diverse and best studied of all marine ecosystems A generously illustrated and comprehensive source of information this volume will also be an important launching pad for future research and will shed new light on the study of marine fish ecology worldwide The contributors touch on many fields in biology including physiology development genetics behavior ecology and evolution The book includes sections on the history of research both published and unpublished data sections on collecting techniques and references to important earlier studies     An Ecological Characterization of the Central and Northern California Coastal Region: Watersheds and basins (2 v.) ,1981     Ecological Indicators Daniel H. McKenzie,D. Eric Hyatt,V. Janet McDonald,2012-12-06 Today environmental problems of unprecedented magnitude confront planet earth The sobering fact is that a whole range of human activities is affecting our global environment as profoundly as the billions of years of evolution that preceded our tenure on Earth The pressure on vital natural resources in the developing world and elsewhere is intense and the destruction of tropical forests wildlife habitat and other irreplaceable resources is alarming Climate change ozone depletion loss of genetic diversity and marine pollution are critical global environmental concerns Their cumulative impact threatens to destroy the planet s natural resources The need to address this situation is urgent More than at any previous moment in history nature and ecological systems are in human hands dependent on human efforts The earth is an interconnected and interdependent global ecosystem and change in one part of the system often causes unexpected change in other parts Atmospheric oceanic wetland terrestrial and other ecological systems have a finite capacity to absorb the environmental degradation caused by human behavior The need for an environmentally sound sustainable economy to ease this degradation is evident and urgent Policies designed to stimulate economic development by foregoing pollution controls both destroy the long term economy and ravage the environment Over the years we have sometimes drawn artificial distinctions between the health of individuals and the health of ecosystems But in the real world those distinctions do not exist     Terrestrial Vegetation of California, 3rd Edition Michael Barbour,Todd Keeler-Wolf,Allan A. Schoenherr,2007-07-17 This thoroughly revised entirely rewritten edition of what is the essential reference on California s diverse and ever changing vegetation now brings readers the most authoritative state of the art view of California s plant ecosystems available Integrating decades of research leading community ecologists and field botanists describe and classify California s vegetation types identify environmental factors that determine the distribution of vegetation types analyze the role of disturbance regimes in vegetation dynamics chronicle change due to human activities identify conservation issues describe restoration strategies and prioritize directions for new research Several new chapters address statewide issues such as the historic appearance and impact of introduced and invasive plants the soils of California and more     Ecological Characterization of the Central and Northern California Coastal Region: pt.1. plant physiology to try with the help of Sea Grant funds wetland ecology it didn't take long to discover a slim volume published in 1959 by the University of Georgia and edited by R A Ragotzkie L R Pomeroy J M Teal and D C Scott entitled Proceedings of the Salt Marsh Conference held in 1958 at the Marine Institute Sapelo Island Ga Now forty years later the Sapelo Island conference has been the major intellectual impetus and another Sea Grant Program the major backer of another symposium the International Symposium Concepts and Controversies in Tidal Marsh Ecology This one re-examines the ideas of that first conference ideas that stimulated four decades of research and led to major legislation in the United States to conserve coastal wetlands It is dedicated appropriately to two then young scientists Eugene P Odum and John M Teal whose inspiration has been the starting place for a generation of coastal wetland and estuarine research I do not mean to suggest that wetland research started at Sapelo Island In 1899 H C Cowles described successional processes in Lake Michigan freshwater marsh ponds There is a large and valuable early literature about northern bogs most of it from Europe and the former USSR although Eville Gorham and R L Lindeman made significant contributions to the American literature before 1960 V J

Ecosystem Concepts for Sustainable Bivalve Mariculture National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Ocean Studies Board, Committee on Best Practices for Shellfish Mariculture and the Effects of Commercial Activities in Drakes Estero, Pt. Reyes National Seashore, California, 2010-04-18 U S mariculture production of bivalve molluscs those cultivated in the marine environment has roughly doubled over the last 25 years Although mariculture operations may expand the production of seafood without additional exploitation of wild populations they still depend upon and affect natural ecosystems and ecosystem services Every additional animal has an incremental effect arising from food extraction and waste excretion Increasing domestic seafood production in the United States in an environmentally and socially responsible way will likely require the use of policy tools such as best management practices BMPs and performance standards BMPs represent one approach to protecting against undesirable consequences of mariculture An alternative approach to voluntary or mandatory

BMPs is the establishment of performance standards for mariculture. Variability in environmental conditions makes it difficult to develop BMPs that are sufficiently flexible and adaptable to protect ecosystem integrity across a broad range of locations and conditions. An alternative that measures performance in sustaining key indicators of ecosystem state and function may be more effective. Because BMPs address mariculture methods rather than monitoring actual ecosystem responses, they do not guarantee that detrimental ecosystem impacts will be controlled or that unacceptable impact will be avoided. Ecosystem Concepts for Sustainable Bivalve Mariculture finds that while performance standards can be applied for some broad ecosystem indicators, BMPs may be more appropriate for addressing parameters that change from site to site, such as the species being cultured, different culture methods, and various environmental conditions. This book takes an in-depth look at the environmental, social, and economic issues to present recommendations for sustainable bivalve mariculture.
