Traditional econometric methodology proceeds along the following lines:

1. Statement of theory or hypothesis.
2. Specification of the mathematical model of the theory (Economic Model)
3. Collecting the data
4. Specification of the statistical, or econometric model
5. Estimation of the parameters of the econometric model
6. Hypothesis testing
7. Using the model for control or policy purposes.

Econometric Analysis:

Econometric Analysis William H. Greene, 2003 For a one year graduate course in Econometrics This text has two objectives The first is to introduce students to applied econometrics including basic techniques in regression analysis and some of the rich variety of models that are used when the linear model proves inadequate or inappropriate The second is to present students with sufficient theoretical background that they will recognize new variants of the models learned about here as merely natural extensions that fit within a common body of principles The Fifth Edition features a complete update of techniques and developments a reorganization of material for improved presentation and new material and applications

Wooldridge, 2010-10-01 The second edition of a comprehensive state of the art graduate level text on microeconomic methods substantially revised and updated The second edition of this acclaimed graduate text provides a unified treatment of two methods used in contemporary econometric research cross section and data panel methods By focusing on assumptions that can be given behavioral content the book maintains an appropriate level of rigor while emphasizing intuitive thinking The analysis covers both linear and nonlinear models including models with dynamics and or individual heterogeneity In addition to general estimation frameworks particular methods of moments and maximum likelihood specific linear and nonlinear methods are covered in detail including probit and logit models and their multivariate Tobit models models for count data censored and missing data schemes causal or treatment effects and duration analysis Econometric Analysis of Cross Section and Panel Data was the first graduate econometrics text to focus on microeconomic data structures allowing assumptions to be separated into population and sampling assumptions This second edition has been substantially updated and revised Improvements include a broader class of models for missing data problems more detailed treatment of cluster problems an important topic for empirical researchers expanded discussion of generalized instrumental variables GIV estimation new coverage based on the author's own recent research of inverse probability weighting a more complete framework for estimating treatment effects with panel data and a firmly established link between econometric approaches to nonlinear panel data and the generalized estimating equation literature popular in statistics and other fields New attention is given to explaining when particular econometric methods can be applied the goal is not only to tell readers what does work but why certain obvious procedures do not The numerous included exercises both theoretical and computer based allow the reader to extend methods covered in the text and discover new insights
