After decades in the shadows urban lighting is re emerging as a matter of public debate Long standing truths are increasingly questioned as a confluence of developments affects lighting itself and the way it is viewed Light has become an integral element of place making and energy saving initiatives alike Rapidly evolving lighting technologies are opening up new possibilities but also posing new challenges to planners and awareness is growing that artificial illumination is not purely benign but can actually constitute a form of pollution As a result public policy frameworks incentives and initiatives are undergoing a phase of innovation and change that will affect how cities are lit for years to come The first comprehensive compilation of current scientific discussions on urban lighting and light pollution from a social science and humanities perspective Urban Lighting Light Pollution and Society contributes to an evolving international debate on an increasingly controversial topic The contributions draw a rich panorama of the manifold discourses connected with artificial illumination in the past and present from early attempts to promote new lighting technologies in the late 19th and early 20th centuries to current debates on restricting its excessive usage in public space and the protection of darkness By bringing together a cross section of current findings and debates on urban lighting and light pollution from a wide variety of disciplines it reflects that artificial lighting is multifaceted in its qualities utilisation and interpretation Including case studies from the United States Europe and the UK Urban Lighting Light Pollution and Society is one of the first to take a serious assessment of light pollution and places and is a valuable resource for planners policy makers and students in related subjects
