Harm Reduction Patricia G. Erickson, Diane M. Riley, Yuet W. Cheung, Pat A. O'Hare, 1997-12-15 Since the First International Conference on the Reduction of Drug Related Harm held in 1990 the term harm reduction has gained wide currency in the areas of public health and drug policy Previously the field was characterized by heated struggle between prohibition and legalization of addictive substances and this debate tended to obscure practical collective approaches Harm reduction an approach which encompasses various policy directives and program initiatives was inspired by the positive outcomes of such public measures as needle exchange programs for reduction of HIV risk methadone maintenance programs education on the risks of tobacco use and programs designed to limit alcohol consumption The essays in this book illustrate the scope and vigour of the emerging harm reduction model The essays drawn from seven international conferences on harm reduction cover a wide variety of topics including public policy women and reproductive issues the experiences of special populations human rights defining and measuring harm and intervention Researchers and practitioners will benefit from the varied papers in the volume which combine insights into policy making and front line outreach efforts with comprehensive conceptual and empirical approaches Harm Reduction represents an important initiative in making academic work accessible and useful to a larger community and provides guidance for the development of effective policies and programs Drug Law Enforcement, Policing and Harm Reduction Matthew Bacon, Jack Spicer, 2022-12-30 The policing of drugs is an intriguing complex and contentious domain that brings into sharp focus the multifaceted nature of the police role and has farreaching consequences for health crime and justice While research on drugs policing has historically been surprisingly sparse fragmented and underdeveloped the field has recently become a burgeoning area of academic study influenced by contemporary trends in policing practices changes in drug policy and wider social movements This book makes a much needed interdisciplinary and international contribution that engages with established and emerging areas of scholarship advances cutting edge debates and sets an agenda for future directions in drugs policing Drug Law Enforcement Policing and Harm Reduction is the first edited collection to devote its attention exclusively to drugs policing It brings together a range of leading scholars to provide a deep and thorough account of the current state of knowledge In addition to academic analysis authors also include serving police officers and policymakers who have influenced how drugs policing is framed and carried out Together the contributors draw on a diverse set of empirical studies and theoretical perspectives with the thread running throughout the book being the concept of harm reduction policing With accounts from various countries localities and contexts topics covered include the in effectiveness and un intended consequences of the war on drugs attempts to reform drugs policing and the role of partnerships and policy networks The broader theme of inequality lies at the heart of this collection An accessible and compelling read this book will be of interest to academics and students of criminology public health and social policy especially those researching policing drug policy and harm reduction It also offers valuable insights substances becomes associated with particular social groups the social dynamics involved in our coming to think of these phenomena as we do and the factors that determine the political and policy responses to drug use Adopting approaches from anthropology sociology history political science and geopolitics to challenge the prevailing pathologization and criminalization of drug use this book provides international and comparative perspectives on drug research based on the latest research in Europe the USA the Middle East and Hong Kong Addiction Treatment Daniel Hood,2017-09-08

Addiction Treatment is an ethnography that compares two types of residential drug free treatment programs religious faith based programs and science based secular programs Although these programs have originated from significantly different ideological bases in examining the day to day operations of each Daniel E Hood concludes that they are far more alike than they are different Drug free treatment today whether in secular or religious form is little more than a remnant of the temperance movement It is a warning to stop using drugs At its best treatment provides practical advice and support for complete abstinence At its worst it demeans users for a form of behavior that is not well understood and threatens death if they do not stop Hood argues that there is no universal agreement on what addiction is and that drug abuse is little more than a catch all term of no specific meaning used to condemn behavior that is socially unacceptable Through extensive participatory observations intimate life history interviews and informal conversations with residents and staff Hood shows how both programs use the same basic techniques of ideological persuasion mutual witnessing methods of social control discourse deprivation and the same proposed zero tolerance abstinent lifestyle Christian living vs Right living as they endeavor to transform clients from addicts to citizens or from sinners to disciples Redemption and Recovery Daniel Hood,2017-07-05 This ethnography continues the thick description of faith based and science based drug programs begun in Addiction Treatment Using extensive interviews and his own participation in daily rounds of treatment Hood provides a vivid comparison of resident experience at each type of institution Redemption and Recovery tells the stories of two houses in the Bronx NY that serve people with drug problems Redemption House and Recovery House These stories include the direct accounts of residents druggin lives before treatment and their search for normalcy after recovery or redemption Other chapters dissect the religion of science based treatment and compare success rates religious vs secular Addiction Treatment had detailed a similar process of personal conversion central to both treatments This sequel uses the contextualized demographics of residents to uncover profound parallels between the two unique programs and debunk their shared ideology of abstinence Addiction, Modernity, and the City Christopher B.R. Smith,2015-11-19 Examining the interdependent nature of substance space and subjectivity this book constitutes an interdisciplinary analysis of the intoxication indigenous to what has been termed our narcotic modernity The first section Drug Culture demonstrates how the body of the addict and the social body of the city are both inscribed by controlled substance Posing addiction as a pathology out of place that is specific to the late capitalist urban landscape the second section Dope Sick conducts a critique of the prevailing pathology paradigm of addiction proposing in its place a theoretical reconceptualization of drug dependence in the terms of pre inscription Remapping the successive stages or phases of our narcotic modernity the third section Narco State delineates three primary eras of narcotic modernity including the contemporary city of safe supervised consumption Employing an experimental intra textual format the fourth section Brain Disease mimics the sense state or scape of intoxication accompanying each permutation of narcotic modernity in the interchangeable terms of drug dream and or disease Tracing the parallel evolution of addiction the late capitalist cityscape and the pathological project of modernity the four parts of this book thus together constitute a users guide to urban space

Hard Bargains Mona Lynch, 2016-11-01 The convergence of tough on crime politics stiffer sentencing laws and jurisdictional expansion in the 1970s and 1980s increased the powers of federal prosecutors in unprecedented ways In Hard Bargains social psychologist Mona Lynch investigates the increased power of these prosecutors in our age of mass incarceration Lynch documents how prosecutors use punitive federal drug laws to coerce guilty pleas and obtain long prison sentences for defendants particularly those who are African American and exposes deep injustices in the federal courts As a result of the War on Drugs the number of drug cases prosecuted each year in federal courts has increased fivefold since 1980 Lynch goes behind the scenes in three federal court districts and finds that federal prosecutors have considerable discretion in adjudicating these cases Federal drug laws are wielded differently in each district but with such force to overwhelm defendants ability to assert their rights For drug defendants with prior convictions the stakes are even higher since prosecutors can file charges that incur lengthy prison sentences including life in prison without parole Through extensive field research Lynch finds that prosecutors frequently use the threat of extremely severe sentences to compel defendants to plead guilty rather than go to trial and risk much harsher punishment Lynch also shows that the highly discretionary ways in which federal prosecutors work with law enforcement have led to significant racial disparities in federal courts For instance most federal charges for crack cocaine offenses are brought against African Americans even though whites are more likely to use crack In addition Latinos are increasingly entering the federal system as a result of aggressive immigration crackdowns that also target illicit drugs Hard Bargains provides an incisive and revealing look at how legal reforms over the last five decades have shifted excessive authority to federal prosecutors resulting in the erosion of defendants rights and extreme sentences for those convicted Lynch proposes a broad overhaul of the federal criminal justice system to restore the balance of power and retreat from the punitive indulgences of the War on Drugs

Alcohol Consumption Harald Klingemann, G. Gmel, 2013-03-14 Research on alcohol related consequences has traditionally focused mainly on health aspects of alcohol consumption or effects which can be more easily quantified or measured. It is evident that alcohol has many consequences which can be characterised as social in nature and which are not or not only medical and are directly health related. Such consequences include violence, crime and psychosocial factors. The increasing relevance of consequences of alcohol consumption other than medical is also reflected in the second European Action Plan 2000-2004 of WHO aiming at the prevention and reduction of harm done by alcohol to the health and wellbeing of individuals, families and communities. This book attempts to provide a comprehensive overview of social consequences of alcohol consumption on the individual, group, organisational and societal level. It is a result of a two year collaborative study under the leadership of WHO Euro with the participation of alcohol researchers from Finland, Germany, Norway, Scotland and Switzerland. Although the book was written by experts in the field, it is targeted not only at scientists but at all people dealing with alcohol related problems in practice.
