Health Insurance in Developing Countries Aviva Ron, Brian Abel-Smith, Giovanni Tamburi, 1990 This volume describes the evolution of the social security approach to health insurance from the first initiatives in Europe to the adaptation of the concept in other parts of the world It then focuses on benefits and financing and on the inter relationship between the social security system and government agencies particularly those dealing with health A concise review of the mechanisms involved in both the delivery of health services and providing payment is followed by an analysis of current administrative issues The second part contains country profiles of health care programmes in Health Insurance in Developing Countries, 1993

An Introduction to Health Planning for Developing Health Systems Andrew Green, 2007-01-11 Health planning is a critical component when responding to the health needs of low and middle income countries characterised by particularly stringent resource constraints The major communicable diseases such as AIDS TB and malaria often appear in parallel with growing non communicable diseases including heart disease and diabetes and yet resources are often less than the levels recommended by the World Health Organisation for basic health care The new edition of this well respected text explains the importance of health planning in both developing regions such as Africa and those in transition such as Central and Eastern Europe It stresses the importance of understanding the national and international context in which planning occurs and provides an up to date analysis of the major current policy issues including health reforms Separate chapters are dedicated to the distinct issues of finance for health care and human resource planning The various techniques used at each stage of the planning process are explained starting with the situational analysis and then looking in turn at priority setting option appraisal programming implementation monitoring and evaluation The book ends by examining the challenges facing planners in the 21st century particularly in the light of growing globalisation A major theme of the book is the need to recognise and reconcile the inevitable tension that lies between value judgements and rational decision making As such in addition to introducing techniques such as costing and economic appraisal it also outlines techniques such as stakeholder analysis for understanding the relative attitudes and power of different groups in planning decisions Each chapter includes a comprehensive bibliography including key websites a summary and exercises to help the reader practise techniques and better understand the content The book argues that all health professionals and community groups should be involved in the planning process for it to be effective and will therefore appeal to anyone involved in planning Recent Health Policy Innovations in Social Security Xenia Scheil-Adlung, 2018-04-24 The debate about health care reform has gone on for many years The debate has generated often innovative ideas for reform that transcend national boundaries For example proposals have been made for an extension of health insurance with a framework of social protection progressive development of funding methods controls on expenditure bringing benefits into line with what is actually needed and the application of technological advances The book concentrates on health insurance policy innovations in selected countries in Africa the Americas Asia and Europe In addition this book addresses recent institutional economic findings with regard to application of information technology in health insurance systems Topics discussed include new approaches in extending coverage in a health insurance system confronting resource scarcity innovative strategies refining benefits to meet current needs new institutional and administrative frameworks and transformation through information technology systems Many of the innovations presented here have already been integrated into existing reforms and the authors refer to concrete developments in individual countries and regions This book presents those important innovations to social health insurance systems in industrialized and developing countries that have been brought forward in recent years and as far as possible already evaluated In doing so the intention is to show developments that are valid for more than one country and could have long term impact on health insurance systems This book is intended to promote deeper exchanges of experience between differing regions countries and health insurance systems In this way it will stimulate ideas for politicians and practitioners scientists and other experts
