Health Related Counseling With Families Of Diverse Cultures Family Health And Cultural Competencies:

Health Related Counseling with Families of Diverse Cultures Ruth P. Cox, 2003-02-28 This volume focuses on the necessity of family health counseling in providing effective efficient health care in our technologically advanced diverse and complex society Clinicians must have a broad understanding of all factors that affect individuals and families at all levels to provide culturally competent collaborative care Theoretical framework paradigms are presented that guide clinical practice A postmodern perspective provides skills for dialogical conversations and collaborative relationships with families The book widens the health care perspective by providing a foundational view incorporating both the family within its cultural ethnic context and the multiple systems with which they interact as resources for health The goal is to provide a foundation in the concepts and skills of health related counseling with families from diverse cultures to learn how these concepts are used in clinical practice to learn how to work with families and communities during and after disasters and to see how these concepts affect political decisions at the local state and federal level as well as how these concepts drive family social policy or predict the future of family health care The book also provides information on common psychiatric medications the types ranges uses side effects interactions with other drugs effects on counseling and the collaboration needed among health professionals This will be a valuable resource for those in the fields of counseling clinical and family psychology family therapy psychiatry family and primary care medicine social work and nursing

Social History Assessment Arlene Bowers Andrews, 2006-12-07 Her book takes us on a journey back to the basics of conducting a thorough and informative social history and is an account of what a real social history involves I recommend this book not only for the novice but also for all clinicians who want an edge on how to accumulate more pertinent information concerning their patients and to guide their treatment

PSYCCRITIQUES In the mental health and human service professions taking a social history assessment marks the start of most therapeutic interventions Social History Assessment is the first resource to offer practical guidance about interpreting the social history Author Arlene Bowers Andrews provides rich resources to assist helping professionals as they gather and most importantly interpret information about social relationships in the lives of individuals

Crisis Intervention Training for Disaster Workers George W. Doherty, 2007-01-01 Doherty provides information about training for mental health professionals and first responders who work with victims of disaster related stress and trauma He provides a brief overview of disasters and responders roles including discussion about war terrorism and follow up responses by mental health professionals

Acculturation and Psychological Adaptation Vanessa S. Castro, 2003-01-30 This volume addresses the psychological impact of interethnic contact and acculturation in Latin American settings focusing on the effects of acculturation on self esteem among adolescents Opening with an account of relevant theoretical and empirical literature on interethnic contact and acculturation this book represents an acid test of the cross cultural applicability of theory and method largely derived from research on acculturation to North American and European settings Much research has focused on acculturation processes among ethnic immigrants and ethnic minorities leading to the impression that host or majority groups remain unchangeable during acculturation By contrast this volume shows that psychological changes occur in all groups involved in the contact reinforcing the idea that acculturation is a special case of mutual influence This book will be of special interest for researchers scholars or students seeking to understand the acculturation process outside North America and Europe Strong evidence is presented showing the development of positive ties with both one's own and other relevant groups provides a more solid basis for self esteem than relinquishing ties to the ethnic group of reference

Racial Sensitivity and Multicultural Training Martin Strous, 2004-01-30 Offering implications for democratizing psychology on a global scale this work illustrates how professional training for mental health practitioners is often inadequate on issues pertaining to race and racism The author shows prime examples in his homeland South Africa and focuses on how those practices reflect assumptions concerning racial superiority Also addressed is how therapists may be influenced by prevailing ideologies unaware of how prejudices translate into discriminatory work practices and ignorant of the power of their own discriminatory discourses The author also investigates how positive attitudes by counselors and therapists reflect positions related to racial sensitivity He proposes a new model for multicultural and multiracial sensitivity training

The Undreaded Job Richard Brislin, 2010-06-02 This essential guide explains how to find satisfaction in the workplace in the face of imperfections involving oneself and others The Undreaded Job Learning to Thrive in a Less than Perfect Workplace was written to help people find satisfaction in the workplace turning work into a major contributor to overall happiness The book is organized around issues individuals face as they try to thrive in the face of inevitable workplace imperfections These include imperfections in the leaders for whom they work and the colleagues with whom they interact The book also covers the influence of one's own thinking processes and those of others power and political sophistication in the workplace worker motivation development and change workplace diversity social skills and the communication challenges that arise as people pursue different or conflicting goals The author an expert in both psychology and management reviews research on these topics as it relates to workplace satisfaction and life happiness Each chapter explains research findings in ways that translate them into key concepts applicable in any workplace at any level Drinking from the Same Well Lydia F. Johnson,2011-05-09 Drinking from the Same Well is designed for those who seek a praxis oriented theological grounding in the exploration of cross cultural perspectives in the field of pastoral care and counseling It traverses the broad terrain of cultural analysis and also explores in depth a number of discrete cross cultural issues in pastoral counseling related to communication conflict empathy family dynamics suffering and healing Cultural analysis and theological reflection are situated alongside numerous case studies of persons and situations that enliven the concepts being discussed and readers are invited to engage personally with the material through a variety of focus questions and reflective exercises This book can serve as a helpful textbook for seminarians and a useful guide for pastors and priests church study groups multicultural parishes and anyone engaged in helping ministries with persons from other cultures The goal is to develop culturally competent pastoral caregivers by providing a comprehensive and practical overview of the generative themes and challenges in cross cultural pastoral care Thriving in the Wake of Trauma Thema Bryant-Davis,2005-06-30 Race ethnicity sexual orientation migration status religion and many other cultural factors play an important role in recovery from a traumatic event However most conventional attempts to help people recover from trauma do not anticipate or address these factors Here a psychologist describes how to recognize the cultural issues that need to be considered for healing She offers vignettes illustrating these issues as well as activities for traumatized people to regain their sense of self esteem safety strength and calm Progress in Asian Social Psychology Kuo-Shu Yang,Kwang-Kuo Hwang,Paul Pedersen,Ikuo Daibo,2003-03-30 This volume presents ways of thinking dramatically different from mainstream psychology which is seen by many as primarily a product of Western civilization Asian social psychologists in this edited collection apply Asian perspectives to issues of major concern in their societies including parental beliefs about shame and moral socialization in Taiwan Hong Kong and the United States achievement motivation in Taiwan and the United States and the effects of school violence on the psychological adjustment of Korean adolescents Other chapters examine the role of social psychologists in Confucian societies and group dynamics in Japan The authors believe psychological research using an indigenous approach will enable Asian as well as non Asian psychologists to understand the cognitions and behaviors of Asian people more accurately Scholars and students interested in Asian psychology social cultural and cross cultural psychology will find this volume of interest Fooling Ourselves Harry C. Triandis,2008-12-30 Self deception occurs because we often see the world the way we would like it to be rather than the way it is Our brains so long for things the way we want them we might not even be aware we are fooling ourselves explains author Harry Triandis a widely known Professor Emeritus of Psychology Across cultures and around the world self deception is a phenomenon that has subtle and profound effects on everyday life explains Triandis also former president of the International Association of Cross Cultural Psychology In this work he not only explains how and why self deceptions occur in three areas politics religion and terrorism but also how to recognize and reduce the frequency of fooling ourselves Insights here include consideration of personal and societal self deceptions as well as extensive understanding of how politics ideologies and religions can frame reality for each of us in such a way that it is in our minds warped so the stage is well set for self deception This text will be of special interest to general readers drawn to politics and religion as well as scholars of psychology anthropology and sociology

The Politics of Stereotype Moises F. Salinas, 2003-10-30 Affirmative Action was initially an emergency stop gap measure to resolve a serious and immediate problem As such like most temporary corrective measures it was imperfect the guidelines vague and definition unclear with a misguided understanding of merit Stereotypes have not disappeared from American society Prejudice has been transformed from overt actions in the 1950s to more subtle and indirect forms that are still prevalent Salinas shows us that a long term program is needed to solve the problem of inequality not just compensate for it Affirmative Action was originally needed to deal with disparities social economic political and educational in America What is needed is a new long term program to attack the root causes of inequality and prejudice Salinas believes the quest to end disparity in this country must begin with educational reform abandoning an antiquated educational model designed to serve an emerging industrial society and based on the values of the dominant white class of the time He applies empirical evidence to reach policy conclusions moving beyond our current Affirmative Action
