Heather Richardson, Gillian Chowns, 2019-07-09 This book draws together the learning of a wide range of social workers and other professionals engaged in end of life care who recognise that dying is essentially a social experience and want to tailor a personal professional and societal response accordingly Through a systemic lens the book explores the nature and experience of living and dying in the UK today then considers ways in which social workers and others may want to work with people who are affected by a diagnosis of a life threatening condition The contributors offer rich and contemporary perspectives on death dying and loss reflective of their different approaches and interests The insights of the book are timely given the growing levels and changing nature of needs for people who are coming to the end of their life in the UK and beyond and the related requirements for compassionate personalised and holistic care within the increasingly professionalised arena of health and social care This book will be of interest to social work practitioners students and others committed to psychosocial support of people who are dying or bereaved and who want to consider how to provide this support most effectively Professionals who are interested in working alongside social workers to deliver high quality end of life care will also find this publication useful This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Social Work Practice

Community Care in Hong Kong Kar-wai TONG, Kenneth Nai-kuen FONG, 2014-10-16 Different global healthcare challenges bring threats to the healthcare system Like other developed countries Hong Kong is also focusing on how to manage the ageing population how to meet the rising public expectations and how to finance the ever increasing medical costs Strengthening community care services may provide a way out for settling these concerns Written by a team of renowned scholars and leading practitioners this book aims at evaluating how different parties can assist in building up local community capacity to achieve sustainable health and wellness The book is divided into three sections The first section discusses the different roles and practices of specialised community care that contribute to the relative success of the healthcare system in Hong Kong The second section makes use of various research practices to extrapolate future healthcare needs and practices in Hong Kong And the last one addresses the values of health care which underlie the healthcare culture structure and practice in Hong Kong over time Apart from pointing out the limitation of the current system this book will also discuss the future directions of the healthcare system in order to cope with the challenges in a changing society Published by City University of Hong Kong Press

Compassionate Cities Allan Kellehear, 2012-08-21 Ground breaking work from a well respected academic in death and bereavement studies Ties in to debates about Health Cities UK and Compassionate Care Coalitions US and new palliative care guidelines in Australia The introduction of health promotion public health ideas into palliative care and bereavement care is a new approach with few other books on the topic

Living with Ageing and Dying Merryn Gott, Christine Ingleton, 2011-05-12 Ageing populations mean that palliative and end of life care for older people must assume greater priority Indeed there is an urgent need to improve the experiences of older people at the end of life given that they have been identified as the disadvantaged dying To date models of care are underpinned by the ideals of specialist palliative care which were developed to meet the needs of predominantly middle aged and young old people and evidence suggests these may not be adequate for the older population group This book identifies ways forward for improving the end of life experiences of older people by taking an interdisciplinary and international approach Providing a synergy between the currently disparate literature of gerontology and palliative care a wide range of leading international experts contribute to discussions regarding priority areas in relation to ageing and end of life care Some authors take a theoretical focus others a very practical approach rooted in their clinical and research experience The issues covered are diverse as are the countries in which discussions are contextualised Those working in both palliative care and gerontology will find the issues and advice discussed in this book hugely topical and of real practical value

Health Promotion and Health Education in Nursing Ruth Cross, 2023-10-01 Health promotion is a core nursing topic and for the past decade as a nurse you will be spending more time and energy in the community doing preventative work and helping to rebalance services away from hospitals You are expected to Make Every Contact Count and look for opportunities to encourage healthier behaviours and lifestyles each time you engage with an individual The recent Coronavirus epidemic has brought public health and health promotion activities even more sharply into the spotlight and this has made a huge impact on the work you do This book focuses on health education this is the core health promotion work that you will do on a daily basis and it is ideal for those studying at Masters level It takes an international approach with Ruth Cross being extremely experienced with a proven track record in the health promotion community This book includes Explanations of the theory and context of health promotion and health education International content from people in the field including Norway Australia and Ghana Tutorial Triggers Points to Ponder and Time to Reflect features encouraging you to apply the chapter content to your practice Real life examples across the lifespan and in a range of different settings

Psychosocial Issues in Palliative Care Mari Lloyd-Williams, 2018-03-16 Caring for terminally ill patients and their families is challenging Patients with life limiting illness require the skills of many professionals but also the support of their community While most clinicians are comfortable in assessing a broad range of physical problems it is often the psychosocial issues that prove the most complex These issues range from psychosocial assessment to the treatment and care of patients with life limiting illnesses Evaluating emotional social and spiritual needs in particular requires excellent teamwork This fully updated and expanded new edition takes a comprehensive look at current practice and provision of psychosocial support as applied to a range of palliative care patients A number of important areas are covered including community approaches of psychosocial care neonatal palliative care the provision of psychosocial care to families the role of volunteers in supporting palliative care professionals and the needs of the frail elderly marginalised patients and those with dementia Including multiple case study examples this highly practical text examines current literature and evidence to demonstrate the best research based practice in psychosocial care It is an essential resource for professionals working within hospitals and communities in the fields of medicine nursing social work
