The Tennessee Mountain Man George Moon, 2013-04 My writing style is like a wheel I begin with the hub then branch out into other tales however before it all ends I bring it back so that it all makes sense I m able to describe a murder as well as sex without resorting to explicit detail like so much found in today s fiction By the proper use of language I accomplish the same emotional response from my readers The reader often finds interesting essays that digress from or adds to the main plot They might include slices of local history or an explanation why certain things appear as they do My stories are told with the reader in mind The plots are fast moving and contain enough surprises to hold the reader's attention. The Tennessee Mountain Man is my third book. It takes a popular character from the first bio novel, Reno's Funmakers, and gives his exploits after five years of marriage. The year is 1861, and the trouble down at Fort Sumter in South Carolina not only changes the United States but Jack Leffingwell and his family. Along with the main plot, my books never fail to offer the reader information that was previously unknown, making it a learning experience.

The Art of American Screen Acting, 1960 to Today Dan Callahan, 2019-02-14. Modern screen acting in English is dominated by two key figures: Method acting guru Lee Strasberg, who taught the art of experiencing over the art of representing, and English theater titan Laurence Olivier, who once said of the Method's immersive approach, "try acting it's so much easier." This book explores in detail the work of such method actors as Al Pacino, Ellen Burstyn, Jack Nicholson, and Jane Fonda, and charts the shift away from the more internally focused Strasberg-based acting of the 1970s and towards the more external way of working exemplified by the career of Meryl Streep in the 1980s.
