Abstract. The aim of the study was to find out how teachers and project actors experienced the implementation of the specialisation education in a digital learning environment. The methods were triangulation with paired t-test, ANOVA and content analysis of qualitative data. The results showed a statistical difference between the responses after the first and second implementation of specialisation education. The overall results show that teachers and project actors demonstrate a strong commitment to producing and developing student-centred and work-life-centred online specialisation education.

1 Background

The constant changes of the social and health sector require teachers to update and specialise their competences. The rise of digital learning environments offers a unique opportunity to expand teaching methods and support teachers' multidisciplinary specialisation [1].

Social and health care is a field where rapid technological developments and changing practices pose constant challenges for teachers. Providing multidisciplinary specialisation education is one way of meeting this challenge, and digital learning environments offer an effective means of supporting such training [2]. Digitalisation enables diversification of teaching, increased flexibility, and different ways of engaging students. The digital learning environment opens new opportunities for multidisciplinary specialisation studies. It allows students to participate at any time and from any place, making it easier to combine work and study [3].

Library Journal, 1999      Unfitting Stories Valerie Raoul, 2007-03-30 Unfitting Stories Narrative Approaches to Disease Disability and Trauma illustrates how stories about ill health and suffering have been produced and received from a variety of perspectives Bringing together the work of Canadian researchers health professionals and people with lived experiences of disease disability or trauma it addresses central issues about authority in medical and personal narratives and the value of cross or interdisciplinary research in understanding such experiences The book considers the aesthetic dimensions of health related stories with literary readings that look at how personal accounts of disease disability and trauma are crafted by writers and filmmakers into published works Topics range from psychiatric hospitalization and aestheticizing cancer to father daughter incest in film The collection also deals with the therapeutic or transformative effect of stories with essays about men sport and spinal cord injury narrative teaching at L Arche a faith based network of communities inclusive of people with developmental disabilities and the construction of a schizophrenic identity A final section examines the polemical functions of narrative directing attention to the professional and political contexts within which stories are constructed and exchanged Topics include ableist limits on self narration drug addiction and the disease model and narratives of trauma and Aboriginal post secondary students Unfitting Stories is essential reading for researchers using narrative methods or materials for teachers students and professionals working in the field of health services and for concerned consumers of the health care system It deals with practical problems relevant to policy makers as well as theoretical issues of interest to specialists in bioethics gender analysis and narrative theory Read the chapter Social Trauma and Serial Autobiography Healing and Beyond by Bina Freiwald on the Concordia University Library Spectrum Research Repository website      New Directions in Literature and Medicine Studies Stephanie M. Hilger, 2017-11-11 This book is situated in the field of medical humanities and the articles continue the dialogue between the disciplines of literature and medicine that was initiated in the 1970s and has continued with ebbs and flows since then Recently the need to renew that interdisciplinary dialogue between these two fields which are both concerned with the human condition has resurfaced in the face of institutional challenges such as shrinking resources and the disappearance of many spaces devoted to the exchange of ideas between humanists and scientists This volume presents cutting edge research by scholars keen on not only maintaining but also enlivening that dialogue They come from a variety of cultural academic and disciplinary backgrounds and their essays are organized in four thematic clusters pedagogy the mind body connection alterity and medical practice Reading Literature and Chronic Pain Josie Billington, 2025-05-15 This valuable and insightful study into chronic pain and its treatment advances a striking analysis of the complex phenomenon of chronic pain also attesting to the importance of the medical humanities in addressing urgent questions that medical science alone cannot resolve The primary purpose of this book is twofold First to demonstrate empirically against a conceptual background drawn from multiple disciplines and knowledge bases historical medical neurobiological psychological socio anthropological how an apparently soft intervention such as literary reading can effectively combat symptoms of a condition as intractable as chronic pain Second to explore what this evidence tells us about pain as a lived experience as well as a condition in urgent need of new treatment options and about literature and the reading of fiction and poetry as therapeutic influences in contemporary health and healthcare most particularly in alleviating the often severe mental health difficulties with which chronic pain is almost universally associated Based on unique empirical research with people who are living with chronic pain this book is the first of its kind to demonstrate the value of literature and literary reading both as a discourse for understanding and finding pain and as an intervention in its treatment

Transfeminist Perspectives in and beyond Transgender and Gender Studies Finn Enke, 2012-05-04 Lambda Literary Award for Best Book in Transgender Nonfiction 2013 If feminist studies and transgender studies are so intimately connected why are they not more deeply integrated Offering multidisciplinary models for this assimilation the vibrant essays in Transfeminist Perspectives in and beyond Transgender and Gender Studies suggest timely and necessary changes for institutions of higher learning Responding to the more visible presence of transgender persons as well as gender theories the contributing essayists focus on how gender is practiced in academia health care social services and even national border patrols Working from the premise that transgender is both material and cultural the contributors address such aspects of the university as administration sports curriculum pedagogy and the appropriate location for transgender studies Combining feminist theory transgender studies and activism centered on social diversity and justice these essays examine how institutions as lived contexts shape everyday life Reading at University Jamie Q Roberts, Caitlin Hamilton, 2020-02-22 This concise and practical text will equip students with the effective reading strategies they need when preparing for their university assessments It dispels assumptions often made about the nature of reading at university and provides an overview of the culture of academic reading note making and what markers expect This text provides support for reading structured
