Regional Office for Europe, 2005-01-01 This publication contains the report of the European Forum organised jointly by the Council of Europe and the WHO Regional Office for Europe and held in Strasbourg France in November 2003 with participants from 27 countries The aims of the Forum were to promote healthy eating in schools as an integral part of healthy lifestyles to review different European approaches to provision of school meals and to make proposals for follow up activities to be pursued by the Council of Europe

Nutrition Standards for Foods in Schools Institute of Medicine, Committee on Nutrition Standards for Foods in Schools, 2007-09-14 Food choices and eating habits are learned from many sources The school environment plays a significant role in teaching and modeling health behaviors For some children foods consumed at school can provide a major portion of their daily nutrient intake Foods and beverages consumed at school can come from two major sources 1 Federally funded programs that include the National School Lunch Program NSLP the School Breakfast Program SBP and after school snacks and 2 competitive sources that include vending machines a la carte sales in the school cafeteria or school stores and snack bars Foods and beverages sold at school outside of the federally reimbursable school nutrition programs are referred to as competitive foods because they compete with the traditional school lunch as a nutrition source There are important concerns about the contribution of nutrients and total calories from competitive foods to the daily diets of school age children and adolescents Nutrition Standards for Foods in Schools offers both reviews and recommendations about appropriate nutrition standards and guidance for the sale content and consumption of foods and beverages at school with attention given to foods and beverages offered in competition with federally reimbursable meals and snacks It is sure to be an invaluable resource to parents federal and state government agencies educators and schools health care professionals food manufacturers industry trade groups media and those involved in consumer advocacy
