Theologians and religious figures often draw a distinction between religion of the head and religion of the heart but few stop to ask what the terms head and heart actually denote Many assume that this distinction has a scriptural basis and yet many Biblical authors used the word heart as a synonym for mind In fact there isn't a strict separation of the two concepts until the modern period as in Pascal's famous claim that the heart has its reasons that reason can not know Since then many other philosophers and theologians have made a similar distinction The fact that this distinction has been so persistent makes it an important area of study Head and Heart Perspectives from Religion and Psychology takes an interdisciplinary approach linking the thinking of theologians and philosophers with theory and research in present day psychology The tradition of using framing questions that have been developed in theology and philosophy can now be brought into dialogue with scientific approaches developed within cognitive psychology and neuroscience Though these scientific approaches have not generally used the terms head and heart they have arrived at a similar distinction in other ways There is a notable convergence upon the realization that humans have two modes of cognition at their disposal that correspond to head and heart The time is therefore ripe to bring the approaches of theology and science in to dialogue an important dialogue that has been heretofore neglected Head and Heart draws on the unique expertise in relating theology and psychology of the University of Cambridge's Psychology and Religion Research Group PRRG In addition to providing historical and theoretical perspectives the contributors to this volume will also address practical issues arising from the group's applied work in

Swears,2019-11-26 Preachers have long been faced with two options On the one hand they can appeal to their congregations intellects teaching them the substance of the faith from the pulpit On the other they can seek to stir their hearers emotions wooing or warning them with the gospel Usually we reserve these two forms of preaching for different tasks or audiences If you are preaching an evangelistic message to the unchurched then your preaching style will draw more heavily on the emotional aspects If you are leading the faithful into a deeper grasp of the Christian message then you will more likely draw on the intellectual components of preaching While most preachers know that the choice between the head and the heart is a false one they often don't know how to bring the two together effectively In this book Thomas Swears offers detailed practical advice on how to preach to both head and heart He shows how both emotions and intellect function any time one tried to convey meaning from the pulpit regardless of the kind of message one is preaching Without abandoning the conventional wisdom on evangelistic vs teaching sermons he nonetheless insists that preaching with integrity in which the Word is truly embodied will always involve the whole person and personality of both the preacher and the congregation
