Global Agricultural Trade And Developing Countries:

Global Agricultural Trade and Developing Countries M. Ataman Aksoy, John C. Beghin, 2004-11-01 Global Agricultural Trade and Developing Countries presents research findings based on a series of commodity studies of significant economic importance to developing countries. The book sets the stage with background chapters and investigations of cross cutting issues. It then describes trade and domestic policy regimes affecting agricultural and food markets and assesses the resulting patterns of production and trade. The book continues with an analysis of product standards and costs of compliance and their effects on agricultural and food trade. The book also investigates the impact of preferences given to selected countries and their effectiveness, then reviews the evidence on the attempts to decouple agricultural support from agricultural output. The last background chapter explores the robustness of the global gains of multilateral agricultural and food trade liberalization. Given this context, the book presents detailed commodity studies for coffee, cotton, dairy, fruits and vegetables, groundnuts, rice, seafood products, sugar and wheat. These markets feature distorted policy regimes among industrial or middle income countries. The studies analyze current policy regimes in key producing and consuming countries, document the magnitude of these distortions and estimate the distributional impacts, winners and losers of trade and domestic policy reforms. By bringing the key issues and findings together in one place, Global Agricultural Trade and Developing Countries aids policy makers and researchers both in their approach to global negotiations and in evaluating their domestic policies on agriculture. The book also complements the recently published Agriculture and the WTO which focuses primarily on the agricultural issues within the context of the WTO negotiations.

The Development Dimension Trade, Agriculture and Development Policies Working Together OECD, 2006-04-18 These conference proceedings explore why policy coherence is important, how it affects global agricultural trade and whether it can help reduce poverty and hunger.

Agriculture and the WTO Merlinda D. Ingco, John D. Nash, 2004-03-17 Annotation This comprehensive reference explores the key issues and options in agricultural trade liberalization from a developing country perspective. Throughout the focus is on ensuring that the outcome of WTO negotiations contributes to growth in developing countries.

Reforming Agricultural Trade for Developing Countries John Nash, Alex F. McCalla, 2006-11-09 In the ongoing Doha Development Round of World Trade Organization negotiations, developing countries have had much greater leverage due at least in part to their large and growing share of world trade. But will the increased influence of developing countries translate into a final agreement that is truly more development friendly? What would be key ingredients in such a final outcome of the negotiations and what would the developing countries really get out of it? This two volume set seeks to answer these questions. This volume, Volume 1, is issues oriented. It takes up some key questions in the negotiations, setting the stage with a historical overview of the Doha Development Agenda to help identify issues of most significance to developing countries and then explores select issues in greater depth. Volume 2 addresses the question of how a development friendly outcome to the talks would affect developing countries by quantifying

the impact of multilateral trade reform It presents several different approaches to modeling the effects of the outcome of negotiations and then investigates why these and other modeling efforts produce such divergent results Aimed at policymakers and stakeholders this two volume effort puts into the public domain important analytical work that will improve the chance for a pro development outcomes of the Doha round negotiations

Do Global Trade Distortions Still Harm Developing Country Farmers? Kym Anderson, Ernesto Valenzuela, 2006 The authors estimate the impact of global merchandise trade distortions and services regulations on agricultural value added in various countries Using the latest versions of the Global Trade Analysis Project GTAP database and the GTAP AGR model of the global economy their results suggest real net farm incomes would rise in developing countries with a move to free trade thereby alleviating rural poverty This occurs despite a terms of trade deterioration for developing countries that are net food importers or that enjoy preferential access to agricultural markets of high income countries The authors also show for several large developing countries the contribution of their own versus other countries trade policies World Bank web site

Trade, Agriculture, and Development Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, 2006 These proceedings of the OECD Global Forum on Agriculture brought together experts from both developing and developed countries and from both the agriculture and development communities The papers presented explore why policy coherence is important how it affects global agricultural trade and whether it can help reduce poverty and hunger

Agricultural Trade Liberalization and the Least Developed Countries Niek Koning, Per Pinstrup-Andersen, 2007-05-07 Developing countries as a group stand to gain very substantially from trade reform in agricultural commodities Agricultural Trade Liberalization and the Least Developed Countries is the first book to address important questions relating to this subject The authors are world renowned experts on international trade and development and they address a very important and timely issue

International Trade, Competitive Advantage and Developing Economies Caf Dowlah,2015-07-30 Available research suggests that less developed countries have significant competitive advantage over developed countries in three major areas of international trade agriculture textiles and clothing T C and cross border labor mobility Incidentally these are also the trade sectors which experienced widespread protectionist measures especially in developed world for decade after decade Under the World Trade Organization WTO which replaced the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade GATT in 1995 much of the restrictions in T C trade has been phased out but still this sector faces much higher tariff and non tariff barriers than any other manufacturing sector in world economy The agricultural sector also experienced significant dismantling of deeply entrenched trade barriers under the WTO over the course of last two decades but the sector still remains plagued with quite extensive domestic supports export subsidies and tariff barriers At the same time despite both theoretical expositions and empirical trends point to significant potential gains from cross border labor mobility the sector remains mired in a complex quagmire of economic and political restrictions around the world Thus all three sectors in which less developed countries have exports interests still remain less liberalized than the sectors in which developed countries have exports interests This book provides an in depth and up to date scholarly analysis of all three trade sectors agriculture T C and cross border labor mobility with a penetrating scrutiny of historical backgrounds and developments crosscurrents of interests and perspectives of both developed and developing countries and evolving trade patterns and potentials in a more liberalized and globalized world economy The book also identifies critical economic issues and options for less developed countries in the WTO negotiations for further liberalization of agriculture T C and cross border labor mobility This volume will be an important point of reference for students scholars and practitioners of international trade economic development development economics and WTO related issues What the 2008/2009 World Economic Crisis Means for Global Agricultural Trade Mary Peters,2010-02 The global economic crisis that started in late 2008 has led to a sharp curtailment of international trade including a short term decline in the value of global agricultural ag trade of around 20% Global ag trade after slowing will continue to grow in the future Economic growth prospects of emerging and developing countries will be important in determining composition of trade toward increased high value products The crisis is leading to a realignment of exchange rates and the ultimate resolution of the crisis will depend on adjustments in the exchange value of the U S dollar The U S ag sector would benefit from a depreciating dollar which results in high export earnings high ag commodity prices increased production and increased farm income Illus Developing Countries and Global Trade Negotiations Larry Crump,S. Javed Maswood,2007-03-19 This book brings together an international team of leading academics and researchers to explore the main issues of the Doha Round trade negotiations The Princeton Encyclopedia of the World Economy. Current Issues In Global Agricultural And Trade Policy: Essays In Honour Of Timothy E. Josling David Blandford, Stefan Tangermann, 2021-02-02 Current Issues in Global Agricultural and Trade Policy presents an authoritative perspective on matters that will contribute to the future shape of global markets for agricultural products Written by a rare grouping of eminent and globally leading agricultural economists from a wide variety of backgrounds the book provides an analytical overview of the academic and professional work of the late Timothy E Josling an outstanding intellectual innovator Areas covered in the book include farm policies of the EU and the USA analysis of farm support and its effects US trade policy for agricultural products analysis of food security implications of sanitary and phytosanitary measures and relevance of geographical indications in international trade The implications of the COVID 19 pandemic for agricultural trade policy are discussed in an endnote This book throws light on some of the most impressive achievements of the agricultural economics profession Who Are the Net Food Importing Countries? Francis Ng, Food Prices and Rural Poverty Centre for Economic Policy Research, 2010-10 The link between food prices and poverty is as complex as it is important Aksoy and Hoekman have put together a book that significantly advances our knowledge of this link The book not only explores the conditions under which the poor are affected by food price movements but includes a number of empirical studies on the price poverty link in specific developing countries It deserves careful study by governments and NGOs Tim Josling Professor Emeritus Food Research Institute and Senior Fellow Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies Stanford University The timing of this book could hardly have been more appropriate while the international community still ponders on the poverty implications of the 2007-8 global food crisis food prices are on the rise again and create nervousness Governments are being called upon to protect the poor against high food prices But we know too little about the actual relationship between food prices and poverty This book provides us with new insights into this critical link and goes far beyond the simplistic views that have prevailed so far Policy makers concerned about food prices and poverty should study it carefully Stefan Tangermann Professor Emeritus Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Development University of Gottingen former OECD Director for Trade and Agriculture The spike in international food prices in 2008 was a reminder to the world of how vital food prices are for those billion or more people near or below the extreme poverty line Most of those poor people live in rural areas but many are net buyers rather than net sellers of food Even so they may benefit indirectly through higher wages when the farm price of food rises The only way to identify which groups are at risk is through careful empirical studies at the household level for each country This volume brings together a rich collection of such studies By covering rural areas of Africa Asia and Latin America it offers a range of insights for policy makers who too often focus only on the more visible urban poor Kym Anderson George Gollin Professor of Economics University of Adelaide

Handbook of the International Political Economy of Trade David Deese, 2014-08-29 This accessible comprehensive and pertinent Handbook will be of interest to academics researchers and students working in the fields of international politics in particular political economy and foreign policy and the economics of trade Practitioner

Implications of Agricultural Trade Liberalization for the Developing Countries Antonio Salazar Pessoa Brandão, Will Martin, 1993 Global trade liberalization reducing both negative and positive protection in line with the Dunkel proposal would gain developing countries an estimated 60 billion a year

Delivering on Doha Kimberly Ann Elliott, 2006

Food Safety, Market Organization, Trade and Development Abdelhakim Hammoudi, Cristina Grazia, Yves Surry, Jean-Baptiste Traversac, 2015-05-13 This book provides an economic perspective on the effects of food safety standards on international trade Focusing on food safety regulation at an international level and private food safety standards the authors use contemporary methodologies to analyze supply chain structures and organization as well as food chain actors strategies They also evaluate the effects of these on both consumer health and developing countries access to international markets The book provides ideas suggestions and policy recommendations for reconciling economic interests with consumer health which will be of special interest to academics as well as to practitioners

Case Studies in Food Policy for Developing Countries: Institutions and international trade policies Per Pinstrup-Andersen, 2009 The food problems now facing the world scarcity and starvation contamination and illness overabundance and obesity are both diverse and complex What are their causes How severe are they Why do they persist What are the solutions The authors of the more than sixty international case studies contained in these books approach the food system with a multidisciplinary perspective In three volumes that serve as valuable teaching tools they call upon the wisdom of disciplines including economics nutrition sociology anthropology environmental science medicine and geography to create a holistic picture of the state of the world s food systems today The authors focus in on specific cases from all corners of the globe to cover topics including drought and soil conservation land allocation and cooperative marketing efforts and food safety measures and advertising policies In documenting past successes and failures these case studies provide a valuable foundation for future research and efforts to create truly successful and sustainable food policy
