Engineering The F4 Phantom Ii Parts Into Systems:

Engineering the F-4 Phantom II Glenn E. Bugos,1996 Conceived in 1953 in a chickenwire covered cubicle known as the advanced design cage at McDonnell Aircraft the F 4 Phantom II fighter bomber was produced for 25 years serving a full workload in Vietnam for the Navy Marines and Air Force and surviving through the 1990s in the air arms of eleven nations While most case studies of modern aircraft focus on the many ways the military industrial complex goes wrong this trenchant invigorating study looks deeper at how those who built the complex intended it to work Step by step the reader discovers how the relationships among parts systems procedures economies and missions were shaped by relationships among people scientists engineers testers program managers subcontractors military strategists pilots and corporate leaders Drawing on exhaustive research including interviews with key players the author makes a major advance in the burgeoning body of literature on technology management by showing how McDonnell worked through the problems of technical integration that plagued defense engineering in the 1960s and 1970s and led to programs full of complexity It is as much a study of how aircraft manufacturers and military officers went about their business as it is a life and times history of an important aircraft

Rational Accidents John Downer,2024-01-16 An unflinching look at the unique challenges posed by complex technologies we cannot afford to let fail and why the remarkable achievements of civil aviation can help us understand those challenges Nuclear reactors deep sea drilling platforms deterrence infrastructures these are all complex and formidable technologies with the potential to fail catastrophically In Rational Accidents John Downer outlines a new perspective on technological failure arguing that undetectable errors can lurk in even the most rigorous and rational assessments of these systems due to the inherent limits of engineering tests and models Downer finds that it should be impossible from an epistemological viewpoint to achieve the near perfect reliability that we require of our most safety critical technologies There is however one such technology that demonstrably appears to achieve these impossible reliabilities jetliners Downer looks closely at civil aviation and how it has reckoned with the problem of failure He finds that the way we conceive of jetliner reliability hides the real practices by which it is achieved And he shows us why those practices are much less transferrable across technological domains than we are led to believe Fully understanding why jetliners don t crash he concludes should lead us to doubt the safety of other ultra reliable technologies A unique and sobering exploration of technological reliability from an STS perspective Rational Accidents is essential reading for understanding why our most safety critical technologies are even more dangerous than we believe   Western Machinery and Steel World ... ,1966   Scientific and Technical Aerospace Reports ,1988   Aeronautical Engineering ,1990 A selection of annotated references to unclassified reports and journal articles that were introduced into the NASA scientific and technical information system and announced in Scientific and technical aerospace reports STAR and International aerospace abstracts IAA   Automation ,1964
