Geriatric Hip Fractures Nicholas C. Danford, Justin K. Greisberg, Charles M. Jobin, Melvin P. Rosenwasser, Marcella D. Walker, 2021-08-08 The global burden of geriatric hip fractures is enormous From both the patient s and physician s perspective the injury is complex A hip fracture often changes a patient s life and or the life of the patient s family permanently From the physician s perspective care of geriatric hip fracture patients requires a multidisciplinary team which is led by the surgeon and which includes internists and other subspecialists within internal medicine anesthesiologists nurses operating room technicians social workers physical therapists and rehabilitation center coordinators and staff Nowhere in the orthopedic literature is there a text that guides care for these complex patients from injury through recovery This text is the first to do so by organizing and synthesizing a large body of literature Its main themes include pre operative operative and post operative care of the patient who sustains a geriatric hip fracture Its main objective is to organize the current body of literature into a cohesive whole so that the busy orthopedic surgeon does not have to undertake a literature search each time he or she wants an answer to the myriad questions that characterize a patient s injury treatment and recovery course With regard to pedagogy because orthopedic surgeons in training will utilize this book and because the case study is the central pedagogical tool in the field of orthopedic surgery this book includes case studies within each chapter with the author s preferred treatment and decision making rationale for each case Selected video supplements reinforce real

Treatment of Common Hip Fractures U. S. Department of Health and Human Services, Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, 2013-04-19 Hip fractures rank in the top ten of all impairments worldwide in terms of loss in disability adjusted years for people 50 years old The absolute number of hip fracture hospitalizations in the United States is currently about 310 000 and this number is expected to continue to rise due to increased life spans and an aging baby boom generation Ninety percent of hip fractures result from a simple fall therefore efforts to prevent hip fractures are unlikely to have a substantial impact on hip fracture incidence The consequences for hip fractures in elderly individuals are significant in terms of lives lost and the associated negative impacts on hip fracture patients functioning and quality of life One year mortality for patients after a hip fracture is approximately 20 percent with men patients older than 75 years and nursing home patients at higher risk However it is not clear how much of that mortality is due to the fracture and its sequelae and how much to the underlying frailty that may predispose a person to a fracture Morbidity associated with hip fractures may include serious complications such as deep vein thrombosis and postoperative infection muscular deconditioning pain and loss of mobility Among patients who were living independently prior to a hip fracture only about half are able to walk unaided after fracture and about one fifth require long term placement in a care facility Hip fractures are generally classified into three major types depending on the specific location of the fracture femoral neck intertrochanteric and subtrochanteric fractures The term pertrochanteric hip fracture may also be used in hip fracture literature and refers to a more inclusive set of extracapsular fractures including intertrochanteric subtrochanteric and mixed fracture patterns The vast majority of hip fracture patients are treated with surgical repair The short term goal of surgical treatment is to stabilize the hip fracture enough to withstand early mobilization and weight bearing which prevents complications due to prolonged bed rest and aids in fracture healing The type of surgery is generally based on the fracture pattern and patient characteristics Pertrochanteric fractures are generally managed with internal fixation most often plate screw devices or intramedullary nails Femoral neck fractures are treated with either internal fixation or arthroplasty Hemiarthroplasty replaces the femoral head segment of the upper femur with an artificial implant The patient's own acetabulum is not replaced Total hip arthroplasty is the prosthetic replacement of the entire hip joint both the femoral head and the acetabulum within the pelvis The goal of treatment for hip fractures is to return patients to their pre fracture level of function There is a growing body of literature on treatment options and their effects on intermediary and patient post surgical treatment outcomes including several systematic reviews however no comprehensive organization of the evidence across all types of geriatric hip fractures currently exists The aim of the present project was to conduct a systematic review and synthesize the evidence of the effects of surgical treatments of fractures of the hip on patient post treatment outcomes which to date have received only modest attention but which are central to the patient's experience This review was asked to address the following key questions Key Question 1 What is the relationship between patient variables the type of fracture and patient post treatment outcomes such as pain and functioning Key Question 2 What is the relationship between the type of fracture and patient posttreatment outcomes Key Question 3 What is the relationship between implant variables and patient posttreatment outcomes Key Question 4 What is the relationship between the type of intervention and patient post treatment outcomes

Fractures of the Acetabulum Emile Letournel, Robert Judet, 2012-12-06 At the request of our publishers I accepted the task of preparing this second edition I felt this was necessary for several reasons new imaging technologies such as CT scanning and 3 D reconstructions are now used routinely the indications for employing improved approaches are clearer and reconstructions are facilitated by new internal fixation devices Above all I thought it was time to report the long term results of the 940 acetabular fractures 90070 of which were treated surgically a unique series In spite of the experience acquired from the three previous reviews of cases 1966 1971 and 1978 I failed to foresee the amount of time this revision would need In fact it took more than 3 years to follow up the larger number of cases and 159 patients out of 800 i e 22.7% were not included as they had moved since their last review and simply could not be located At a time when it is in fashion to evaluate the cost of health care it is strange to see how public administrators so keen on evaluating the immediate cost of our operations do not care about the quality of their long term results which appears to us however to be the best basis for the choice of the initial treatment ECAB Difficult Hip Fracture - E-Book SC Goel,2014-12-12 ECAB Difficult Hip Fracture E Book
