Bradford S Bell PhD Cornell University USA Editor Personnel Psychology I wish I could have accessed this book many years ago Comprehensive and scholarly the four sections training e learning personal and professional development and performance management fit well together and address a gap in the literature that has been apparent for some time The psychological perspective speaks to growing interest in the micro foundations of strategic success and the blending together of both formal and informal perspectives on learning in organizations ensures a holistic rather than piecemeal approach to the question of how to build individual knowledge skills and competences in organizations I believe that this book will make a significant impact on its target audience in this critical area Helen Shipton Professor of International Human Resource Management Nottingham Trent University UK The Wiley Blackwell Handbook of the Psychology of Training Development and Performance Improvement provides up to date contemporary information for researchers and professionals by reviewing the latest literature and research in the interconnected fields of training development and performance appraisal It brings a psychological perspective to bear on a multidisciplinary field that links to management human resources and education Unique to reference works in this area it maintains a truly global focus on the field with top international contributors looking at research and practice from around the world including South America Europe Canada and Australia as well as the United States and the United Kingdom The chapters cover a diverse range of important contemporary topics such as needs analysis job design active learning self regulation simulation approaches 360 degree feedback and virtual learning environments Together they offer researchers and professionals essential information for building a talented organization a critical and challenging task for organizational success in the twenty first century Library & Information Science

Abstracts ,2008 Expectations and Aspirations Safaa El Tayeb El-Kogali,Caroline Krafft,2019-01-30 Education which has been at the heart of the Middle East and North Africa MENA region s history and civilizations for centuries has a large untapped potential to contribute to human capital well being and wealth The region has invested heavily in education for decades but it has not been able to reap the benefits of its investments Despite a series of reforms MENA has remained stuck in a low learning low skills level Expectations and Aspirations A New Framework for Education in the Middle East and North Africa identifies four key sets of tensions that are holding back education in the region credentials and skills discipline and inquiry control and autonomy and tradition and modernity These tensions are shaped by society and are reflected in classrooms If they are not addressed MENA will continue to operate at a level below its potential This report outlines a new framework with a three pronged approach that can help address these tensions and unleash the potential of education in MENA A concerted push for learning that starts early for all children regardless of background with qualified and motivated educators and that leverages technology uses modern approaches and monitors learning outcomes A stronger pull for skills by all stakeholders in the labor market and society that involves coordinated multisystem reforms within and beyond the education system A new pact for education at the national level with a unified vision shared responsibilities and accountabilities Education is not just the responsibility of the education system it is everyone s business The push pull and pact framework offers an opportunity for MENA to move forward to reclaim its heritage of a learned region and to meet the expectations and aspirations of its people The current situation in MENA requires a renewed focus on education not just as a national priority for economic growth and social development but as a national emergency for stability peace and prosperity
