

ETHICAL DECISION MAKING FRAMEWORK

Following is a simple, practical framework to use as a guide when making ethical decisions about dilemmas.

01 Ask yourself what the dilemma is and GET THE FACTS

- What are the facts of the situation? (Also, what facts are not known?)
- What is the dilemma?
- Who are the main players in this dilemma? (What are the important relationships?)
- What are your choices/options in this situation?
- How do you frame your choice in terms of laws, rules, policies, and standards?
- What are the consequences of the choices involved? (What is at stake and for whom?)

01

02 Consider the most important things you need to RECOGNISE IN YOURSELF

- What are your most important values to consider in deciding how you should act? (Are any of your values in opposition – loyalty vs honesty?)
- What about your principles and morals?
- Which of your own assumptions, biases or past experiences come into play here in your decision making?
- Can you recognise any slippery slope traps?

02

03 It is time to judge your options and MAKE A DECISION

- What would be an ideal/acceptable outcome?
- What is your decision?
- How does your decision measure up with your sense of purpose and belief of what sport should be?
- Are you prepared to stand by your decision even if it is not popular/preferred?
- Do you need to use a sounding board or trusted ally to test your decision?

03

04 COMMIT TO ACTION

- Remember, that the choice you've made is just the beginning. The final, and often most difficult part, is acting on your choice, consistently.
- Ethical decision-making should leave you comfortable that you have invested well in making the best available choice in the circumstances.
- Always assess how your decision turned out and what you learned from it.
- Remember, practising ethical decision-making will make you better at it!
